Schools ask for millage approval

Voters will go to the polls on Tuesday to determine two key school tax propositions that have been resubmitted for consideration by the Board of Education.

Although similar millage requests had been turned down last September during the primary election, school officials feel that the interest generated by the mayoral candidates, city clerk and treasurer's office plus the council races may bring more voters to the polls which they hope could help in approving the millage packages.

The schools are asking for a 1½ mill increase which is specifically earmarked for school maintenance projects and an additional 6 mills for school operations.

Superintendent of Schools, Dr. William Bedell, said that the proposals offered will restore school programs that have been eliminated because of the lack of funds.

"We believe that it is important not only to the children of this community, but to the parents, business people and to every concerned citizen that these two proposals are passed on Nov. 8," Dr. Bedell said. "Schools are the center attraction for most thriving communities, without good schools communities deteriorate."

"We're asking our citizens to support both their schools and their community," Dr. Bedell concluded.

According to school officials, if the two school millages pass on Nov. 8, taxes would increase less than 4 cents per day because of property tax relief called the Homestead Tax Credit or "circuit breaker."

Officials also stress that "for senior citizens, defined as anyone 65 years old or older, the property tax relief provided by the "circuit breaker" provision is much greater than the allowance granted to other taxpayers. In fact, no senior citizen must pay more than 3.5 percent of his/her income in property taxes."

Romulus schools presently level 41 mills for the schools. A mill is $1 for each $1,000 of assessed property value. The last two times that Romulus successfully passed millages were in 1981 and 1977 and both were during November elections.

A record-number of Romulus voters is expected to show up Tuesday for the General Election to select the man or woman who will lead them for the next two years.

On Tuesday, voters will either award incumbent William Oakley a fourth term as Mayor of the City of Romulus or promote city treasurer Beverly McAnally to that post.

If elected, Mrs. McAnally would become the first woman in the city's history to hold down the job as mayor.

Voters also will decide on the city clerk, city treasurer positions and elect seven members to the city council.

"We expect a large voter turnout for this election," said City Clerk Raymond Cantrell. "Although this is not a presidential year, I feel that the interest generated by the mayoral candidates and the other offices is going to bring the voters out in record numbers."

Cantrell pointed out that not only will voters decide the fate of the top elected offices, but they also will decide whether to approve two school tax millages for a total of 7.5 mills. The schools are asking .5 mills for school maintenance and 6 mills for operation (See separate story).

Cantrell, who is completing his first 2-year term as clerk, is being challenged by former deputy clerk, Linda Choate, who lost her bid for the office two years ago.

The city treasurer's race pits former city treasurer and present city councilman John Lewkowicz against Rita McLennan, an 18 year employee of the city and currently a loans and grants specialist in the Community De-

Voters will decide on a 1.5 mill maintenance request and a 6 mill request for operating purposes.

No tainted treats show up in area

By HOWARD SCOTT
ANP Staff Writer

The annual celebration of Halloween, which usually causes lots of headaches for local police departments, came and went this year without creating much of a stir at all.

First and foremost, there were no reports of treats that had been tampered with in either Romulus or Huron Township.

"It really was very quiet," said Romulus Police Chief Don Flood. "We had a little bit of malicious destruction on Devil's Night, but nothing very serious. All in all, it was quite a bit quieter than it has been in the past. Luckily, we had nothing like Detroit had."

Hundreds of fires, set by arsonists, plagued Detroit.

In Huron Township, Sergeant

John Mier echoed Flood's statements on Tuesday morning.

"I was shocked at how quiet it was this year," said Mier.

"Usually, we get fire hydrants opened up so that they flood the road, or kids come in and paint obscene words on things in town."

"This year, all we had was one window broken by someone throwing an egg, and a little bit of toilet paper spread around. Nothing serious at all, really."

Mier also commented that the two instances of destruction occurred on Devil's Night. Nothing unusual at all was reported on Devil's Night in the township.

Both law enforcement officials commented that they would like to see the trend continue during future Halloween celebrations.

'Meet the Candidates'

Candidates support staggered terms for city council

City council terms would be staggered so that all seven members would not face re-election in one year, according to incumbents and candidates seeking office.

This was made emphatically clear last Wednesday when The Associated Newspapers staged its "Meet the Candidates Night" at Romulus High School.

All 20 candidates concurred that, "It would be an excellent idea to stagger the terms of council members." Theoretically, voters on Tuesday could elect seven "new" council members, leaving the council without a person with experience. An amendment, which would have to receive voter approval, to the city charter would be necessary.

The candidates responded to a series of pertinent questions offered by the public and by a panel consisting of Tom Mooradian, Managing Editor of The Associated Newspapers; John Brimble, owner of Capt. Nebos, and John Irving, of Solovtel Corporation.

Candidates who attended included incumbent mayor, William Oakley and challenger Beverly McAnally; incumbent city clerk, Raymond Cantrell and challenger Linda Choate, and city treasurer hopefuls John Lewkowicz and Rita McLennan.

On the council-side were incumbents: Jimmie Raspberry, Barry Baumann, Fred Junior Block, Mary Ann Banks, Alan Lambert, and Pete Bergeron; challengers included: Roger Cadaret, Kathy McCullum, Theodore Jacques, William Wadsworth, Fred Williams, Ellis Pennington and Richard Yeranian.

Following is a terse synopsis of comments made during the 4½ hour session:

OAKLEY — I believe that my administration has been responsive to the needs of our community. I have had a stabilizing effect on our government and have brought the city back from the verge of bankruptcy to financial stability. I was born in the house that my mother lives in, in Romulus 53 years ago. Graduated from Romulus schools and my wife, Mary, and I have raised four children here.

MCANALLY — Investments of city funds have netted the city more than $3 million and I have proven success in solving and identifying problems in the financial department. The development of Romulus is paramount in my mind and still is. I worked to encourage legislation to improve the conditions of residents of mobile home parks. I was one of the first two women elected to City Council and the only woman to serve on the Planning Commission. Attended school in Kansas City. Mrs. McAnally and her husband have lived in Romulus 20 years and have raised her children here.

CANTRELL — In a span of two years I have been able to clear up some of the loose ends left by the previous clerk. I have done a commendable job in the area of voter registration. We have completely updated all of the voter registration procedures and issued new voter registration cards to 12,788 Romulus residents. I wish to continue to serve Romulus in bettering the records and the office they have entrusted upon me.

CHOATE — As deputy clerk, a position I held for four years, everyone was treated equally with the same dignity and respect, rich or poor, young and old, friend or foe. I sought out professional organizations which provided knowledge and training through classes and seminars, such as the Michigan Municipal League to provide the unique type of training necessary to become a professional municipal clerk. The job must have someone who is capable at every minute detail. Records must be correct. I believe I can do the best job.

LEWKOWICZ — As treasurer of Romulus I initiated a suit, Lewkowicz vs. the Wayne County Drain Commissioner, and after eight years we were proven right. The county had illegally assessed us and Romulus and six surrounding communities received a refund. The district result was $146,899 for the residents of Romulus of which $100,000 paid for the Blakely Drain assessment which was removed from the residents' tax bills. I believe I can continue to provide our citizens with experienced service so that they will not be exploited by overzealous politicians.

MCLEON — I firmly believe that innovative and accurate financial procedures are a necessity for a community to achieve growth and development for its citizens. It is the revenue obtained through competent investing and budgeting that can increase services, lower taxes. I have seen what incompetent and archaic financial procedures can do to a municipality and I have refused to stand by and let our community fall backwards. This is why I chose to seek the office of City Treasurer.

Van Buren activists report:Ecology war continues in township

By EVE SILBERMAN
ANP Staff Writer

An important victory has been won, but Van Buren Township's battle for a safe environment continues.

That's the message from a group of township environmental experts in the wake of last week's surprise announcement by the state's new Department of Natural Resources (DNR) director that he will deny a permit expanding the categories of toxic waste allowed at Michigan Disposal.

Township residents had been anxiously awaiting the decision on whether the landfill would be allowed a license amendment permitting it to accept toxic waste at a lower flashpoint (the temperature which it could catch fire).

Had the amendment been approved, the waste disposal facility (at I-94 Service Drive) could have accepted several new categories of industry waste.

But while the five-member Van Buren Township environmental commission joined in the collective sigh of relief that greeted DNR Director Richard Skoog's announcement, they emphasized that important landfill skirmishes still lay ahead.

"Slow down after this? Oh, no, things will probably be even more intensive," said Milton Riggs, chairman. "We feel that now there's someone in the DNR to whom we can appeal."

"We're a little more optimistic after last Thursday's meeting (with the DNR director in the Belleville High School auditorium)," said Tim Burns, another member of the commission. "But we've got a long list of items to work on."

A red letter item on that list is the effort to fight a proposed shipment of substances from the Berlin & Farro toxic waste site (near Flint) to Wayne Disposal, a landfill adjacent to the Michigan Disposal processing facility.

Berlin & Farro clean-up coordinators have submitted a proposal to move from 5,000 to 10,000 yards of sludges and solids to the Van Buren landfill. The proposal is now nearing its final review stages by national Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) officials.

Berlin & Farro clean-up coordinator Mark Fillippini has emphasized that the proposed shipments contain only 50 parts per million of PCBs (chemical causing compounds).

'We're a little more optimistic . . . but we've got a long list of items to work on.'

"We're sending the higher concentration of PCB laced materials to a site near Cincinnati," Fillippini said. "Wayne Disposal is not licensed to receive the higher concentrated materials."

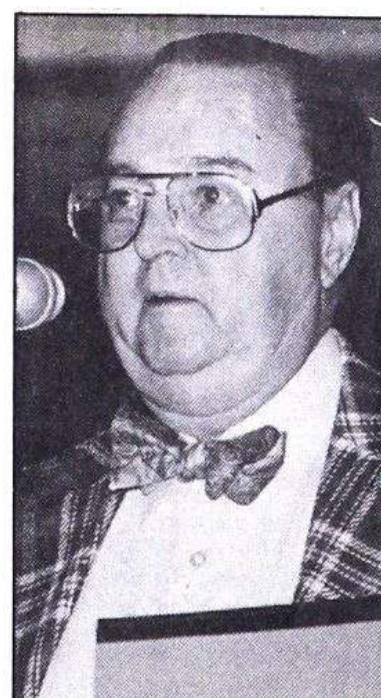

But Riggs and other commission members say they're not reassured by Fillippini's reassurances.

"The problem is that there's no monitoring to speak of at the Berlin site," said Riggs. "There are barrels all over the place. They may sample one in 30 barrels as a way of checking."

Riggs also mentioned that Wayne Disposal is not closely monitored.

"At Thursday's hearing, we asked them how often monitoring took place. They told us three or four times a year," Riggs said. "Well, we want regular monitoring every day — and every hour on the hour."

The environmental commission will intensify its efforts to make DNR officials aware of both sides of the landfill issue, Riggs said. He added that commission members would work closely with township officials should Wayne Disposal be approved as a site for the "lightly contaminated" Berlin & Farro substances.

"One possibility would be that the township could seek an injunction to prohibit the substances coming here," the environmental commission chairman said. "We'll do our best to provide them (the trustees) with necessary environmental information."

The environmental commission is primarily an advisory body, say members. While officially organized last spring, group members for years had been active in the separate landfill and lakes commissions.

Last week's announcement may have had a special ring of satisfaction for the hardworking group of volunteers. For the past three years, members have been active in efforts to make the public aware of the need for vigilant monitoring of the townships' landfills.

"I remember when problems with landfills began to go public in 1979-80," recalled Tim Burns. "At first the big concern was just with the odors."

Members of the landfill commission thought a move revoking sand removal permit for the landfills would "eliminate most of the problems," Burns said.

"We found out that wasn't so," he said. "The landfills ended up moving the sand around on their sites. The permit didn't really help."

But the effort was "an initiation" for Burns, who since then has stayed active in environmental commission activities.

While landfills top the agenda for the group, which meets formally once a month (and informally, sometimes much more), members emphasize they are concerned with any issue affecting the township's ecology.

"Monitoring Belleville Lake is an important part of what we do," said commission member Tina Lependau. Lependau pointed out that the former Lakes Commission played a key role in initiating a U-M pollution study of Belleville Lake in 1979.

The study showed that Willow Creek, not Ford Lake, was the primary cause of pollution to Belleville Lake — a surprise to area officials who thought that Ford Lake was the main polluter.

This winter, the group will request that motorized boating be restricted on Belleville Lake while the lake is in its "winter position."

Three of the members have environmental or technical backgrounds: Lependau, who has an M.A. degree in environmental studies; Burns, an engineer at Ford; and Ed Reissner, a research meteorologist at the University of Michigan. But Riggs, principal of an Ann Arbor elementary school, notes that he's amassed technical knowledge "in bits and pieces" along the way.

"I got into this because I live near the lake, and I was concerned about erosion of the shoreline," Riggs said. "But along the way, a lot else has happened in this township."

The newest commission member is Township Trustee Marilyn Montgomery.

Township officials praise the work of the group. "The commission takes the time to research the issues and present them to the board. We're lucky to have people so knowledgeable who are also tremendously dedicated," said Treasurer Donna Hall.

While they feel challenged by their responsibilities, commission members say they wouldn't mind being a little less busy.

"It seems that every six or seven months, we come to a showdown involving the landfills," Burns said. "And then we just push on ahead to the next crisis."

Van Buren to test water wells

A request that several wells near Wayne Disposal Landfill be tested for contamination was approved by Van Buren Township officials at their October 25 meeting.

The request is a "safeguard," according to Township Treasurer Donna Hall.

"With all the publicity the landfill's had in the past couple of years, we thought it was a good idea to retest," Hall said.

In 1981, the township conducted contamination tests of several wells, but — despite early indications of low-level contamination — final testing results were negative.

About four or five wells will be tested, according to Tim Burns, a member of the township's Environmental Commission. The wells are located in the Quirk subdivision and on the south service drive near the landfill (located at I-94 Service Drive near Rawsonville Road).

With all the publicity the landfill had, we thought it was a good idea to retest the wells.

Donna Hall, treasurer

Some small creeks between the landfill and Belleville Lake will also be tested, Burns said.

"We'll be checking for a number of possibilities," Burns said. "Lead, chromium, several types of PCB's."

The cost of testing would be about $4,000, Burns said. "The DNR has indicated they might pick up the tab. But we don't want to wait a long time on this. If they don't come through soon, we'll try other government agencies," he said.

The township will probably pay for the tests if no other help is forthcoming, according to Hall. "This is an important priority," the treasurer said.

In another environmental issue, the township voted to adopt, on second reading, a soil excavation and landfill ordinance.

The ordinance sets down detailed safeguards and requirements for operating a landfill within the township. Under its statutes the board will authorize a permit only if a landfill "will not be injurious to the public health, safety and welfare of the township and its residents."

The ordinance requires that the landfill owner provide detailed information about the site, as well as an environmental impact study.

Landfill owners would also be required to submit written records of deposited wastes at the request of township officials.

Van Buren officials acknowledge that state and federal ordinances regarding landfills and sand removal can pre-empt local decisions.

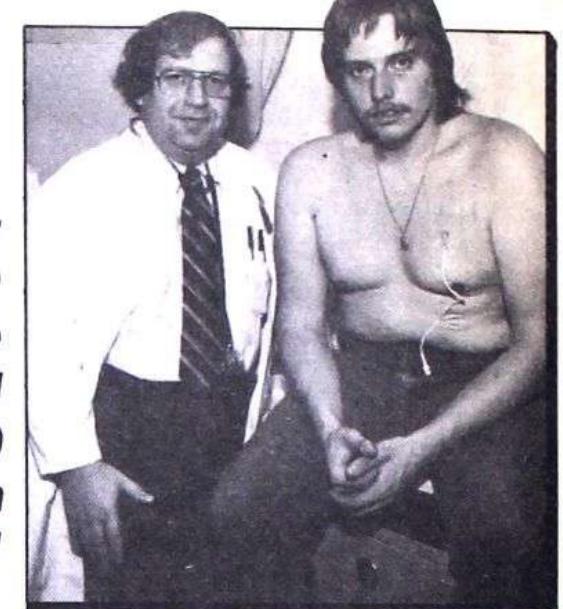

"This is just an attempt to do what we can," said Township Supervisor George Craven. "But our power is unfortunately limited."

Craven and Township Attorney Ron Withoff compiled the ordinance.

In other actions, the trustees expressed their support for a House Bill 4936 which would create staggered terms for township trustees. Currently, the four trustees are elected for four-year terms in presidential years.

Ratified a two year contract with the Van Buren Police Department, member of UAW Local 157. The contract expires on October 14, and provides a wage freeze for the current year.

Dr. Richard Sorkin, on staff at Wayne County General Hospital, checks heart patient Jim Rafferty during a recent clinic visit.

Westland youth is in need of heart transplant

By SUE McDONALD
ANP Staff Writer

Jim Rafferty has heart, but he also needs a heart. The 22-year-old area resident faces an uncertain future these days, although fund-raising efforts by employees of Wayne County General Hospital and their friends are underway to earn an estimated $100,000 needed for a heart transplant operation.

Rafferty three years ago contracted the flu, and like most viruses, it settled in his muscles. What makes him different than most, is the muscle the "bug" picked for its home was his heart.

As a result of the illness, his heart is enlarging and becoming weak. If he does not get a transplant in the next few months, he will not survive the degenerative disease.

"For him to have surgery today would be better than him having surgery tomorrow," explained WCGH employee Jim Rawlinson. "If he had the funds today he would be far better off than having the funds next month when he will be even weaker."

Rawlinson describes the young man as the "all-American type, an above average student in high school, a Boy Scout and news carrier."

"He's a bright, articulate and likeable young man who is confident about the transplant surgery," Rawlinson said. "He's prepared emotionally for this surgery."

So far $33,000 has been raised for the surgery and hopes are being pinned on a Benefit Run, raffle and benefit jamboree Nov. 5 and a tentatively scheduled benefit dance Dec. 2 to raise funds for the young man.

Heart transplant surgery is considered an experimental procedure, so medical insurance will not cover its costs. And Rafferty, who left high school when his father became ill and subsequently died of a heart attack, is not financially able to handle the burden of such an operation.

"There are no funding agencies for heart transplants and as far as I know the government doesn't fund this kind of experimental surgery. There's just no government money, no private endowments to provide for such surgery, and because of the costs, the money must be paid before the procedure is performed," Rawlinson said.

Rafferty is presently at the University of Minnesota medical center in Minneapolis, where he is undergoing tests to establish a file of necessary data to find a compatible heart donor. He was sent there two weeks ago after being rushed to the county hospital with congestive heart failure.

This is not the first patient the hospital staff has determined to raise funds for transplant surgery. Lasalle Rogers of Inkster was in need of similar surgery, and benefits helped raise the needed money. However, Rawlinson admits, this fund raiser is lagging in comparison with the previous campaign, possibly the result of the novelty wearing off. The need, though, Rawlinson added, "is just as great."

The 10-kilometer benefit run will be along Hines Parkway at Wilcox Lake and will include a timed run and a 10-kilometer (6.2 miles) walk.

Pre-registration will be at 8 a.m. Nov. 5 at the race site, with the runs to get underway at 9 a.m.

A pre-registration donation of $6 — $7 the day of the event — will be requested. Entrants are being encouraged to seek pledges for distances covered.

The first five finishers by age and sex will receive awards, and a post-run stretching and cool-down are slated.

"It's rather tragic," Rawlinson noted of Rafferty's plight, "but the heart is an organ that can have a disease settle in it like in other muscle of the body. It's not really rare, just unfortunate."

Registration forms for the run are available at the information desk at Wayne County General Hospital, 2345 Merriman Road, Westland. For information contact Rawlinson at 722-2500, ext. 6400, or write care of the Jim Rafferty Benefit Run, Wayne County General Hospital, 2345 Merriman Road, Westland 48185.

Students build solar home

A unique home of the seven constructed by the Romulus' Building Trades is a multi-level solar-assisted design. The house located at the corner of Cogswell and Tyler roads in north-west Romulus. The home has 1640 square feet of finished space and features a separate family room and formal dining area.

The 3-bedroom, 3 bath plan was designed for a flat or gently sloping site with a west driveway access to a 2 car garage. The home was specifically designed for the climate of the upper midwest to use 40 percent less energy than similar conventional homes.

The specific solar features of the house include: windowless north side that houses utility spaces and is 6 inches thick, south facing (sun) wall with highly energy efficient wood windows with $\frac{1}{2}$ inch air space, double pane, 30 inch roof overhangs to shade windows in summer, but let sun warm the rooms in the winter.

There are solar mass floors made of quarry tile to collect heat in front of the windows and solar mass interior walls to absorb heat, and there is an air-lock double-door front entry to conserve energy.

An appealing feature is the active solar hot water system with collectors on the roof. This is a direct gain system that uses waste heat from the furnace when solar energy is not available.

The students look with pride in their accomplishments, according to Terrel Bird, Building Trades teacher.

Sumpter OKs water project

By EVE SILBERMAN
ANP Staff Writer

Sumpter Township recently approved a construction bid for two new water mains — including one on a virtually abandoned stretch of road — despite the grumblings of some area residents who said they're being left high and dry.

At the October 25 board meeting, township trustees approved an $82,485 bid by Pipe Specialists of Monroe to install water mains on Karr Road south of Arkona, and Elwell between Arkona and Oakville Wattz.

The move angered several township residents attending the meeting, who protested that they've been thirsting several years for sweet tasting non-well water.

"Fourteen years, I've been paying six mills (for the water fund). When do I get my water?"

asked Mildred Smith. The Sumpter resident said she was angry because one of the new water mains will stop three tenths of a mile from her home on Sherman.

"That 1,100 feet (on Karr Road) is in the middle of nowhere. It won't help nobody," protested Stella Pepper, another resident.

'That 1,100 feet (on Karr Road) is in the middle of nowhere. It won't help nobody.'

Stella Pepper

But Sumpter Township officials said that the location was dictated by a court settlement, three years ago between area residents, the township and the Farmers Home Administration.

The federal agency (which provides assistance to small businesses and rural communities) gave $2 million in grant funds in 1977 to install additional water mains throughout the township. (Sumpter put up $2 million in matching funds).

But a group of Sumpter residents, unhappy with the proposed location for the drains, sued both the township and the agency. One result of the lawsuit was an agreement to use leftover funds from the project into installing the Karr Road water main.

"It happens that there's only one or two houses on this stretch of the road," Township Engineer George Wilhem acknowledged.

"It may not make sense, but that's what we have to do by court order," the engineer said.

Currently, about 80 percent of Township residents are served by water mains. Township Supervisor Jim Reeves said he would be going "cup in hand" to various agencies to get funding for new drains.

"We can't afford to do this ourselves," Reeves said. He added that he would be meeting shortly with the Farmer's Home Administration to request additional funds.

Peter LoDico, a 6th grader, operated the huge computer. The next day, he was given 40 minutes to operate one of Tyler's three computers. Two hours later, a teacher asked him why he was not back in class. It seems when you're having fun, time flies, Peter says. Peter had simply lost track of time, being completely engrossed in the computer.

The class learned one way to retire at an early age: join the army at 18. Make the army a career and retire at 38 with good pay and full medical coverage.

The polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 8 p.m.

Strike up the band?

Art Joslin has discussed with me the concept of a community band which would consist of citizens from Belleville, Van Buren and Sumpter Township. The band would play at holiday concerts, summer concerts at Victory Park and any other community events.

The criteria to becoming a member of this band is to have your own instrument and transportation.

Rehearsal would be one or two nights a week and all ages are welcome.

Joslin's goal is to be able to perform at least one concert per week. A program like this would be great for the public relations for Western Wayne County.

If you are interested in joining this organization you can contact Mr. Joslin at 483-1752 or 697-9123, Community Ed.

Starting date for the band is November 1.

Also, please remember that this Thursday, October 27, 1983 will be the last day of special pickup. After this date, any future special pickups will be subject to the City of Belleville's special pickup policy. If you have any questions on this matter, feel free to contact my office.

A SUCCESSFUL PLEA TO A BENEFACITOR

Dear Letter Writer:

I am Oriental and have a hard time expressing myself when speaking English. I have lived in the Detroit metropolitan area for some time. I have a benefactor whose name is Mr. M. He lives out west and has helped me financially through the years. Now I really need his help. I want to open a beauty parlor in the suburbs. Could you please help me write him a letter explaining to him what I want to do and making him understand how important it is for me. I don't want to move as it scares me to think about readjusting to a different home.

Sincerely, Ms. CK

Dear Mr. M:

I am writing this letter to you because I need your help and understanding. In the past, you have done so much to help and support me that I could never thank you. I desperately need your help again and pray that you will be there for me as you have always been.

As you know, I went down south to look the area over. I was not at all pleased with what I saw and would much prefer to remain in this area. I found the people to be very nice, however, the pace was much too fast for me. I am 40 years old and too old to start over in a new city or state. Here, in the Detroit area, I have friends and contacts and am familiar with traveling and know my way around. I feel very comfortable here and would feel displaced if I were to make such a major move. I need to establish roots and build financial security for myself. I want to stay in this area, and toward that end, offer the following well-thought out and sincere proposal.

I would like to sell our house in Oak Park and use $5,000 of the proceeds from the sale as the down payment on a beauty parlor, in Troy. I would like to put the remaining dollars from the sale into a joint money market account in both our names. After the sale of the house, I will, for the time being, live in a small apartment.

After much discussion and research, I have identified three other professionals in the beauty field. Each of the other three women have $5,000 each, available for their 1/4 share in the beauty parlor. We are diligently looking for a suitable Troy location. As you know, we are all talented women with excellent skills.

I thoroughly understand and appreciate your concerns regarding my future, however, I feel that this type of venture would work very well and secure my future for me.

The Troy area, as you probably know, is a prime location. I am confident that this is my answer.

I will be happy to answer any questions you may have and will keep you posted on each and every detail as we begin the implementation and formulation of our new corporation.

Please see your way clear to helping me.

Sincerely, Ms. CK

RESOLUTION:

Mr. M. granted Ms. CK's request and put their home in her name alone so that she can now sell it if she chooses. In addition, Mr. M. agreed to make Ms. CK's house payments for her for one year to give her additional capital.

Please provide me, immediately, with a copy of the "Official Service Contract Manual" and, most importantly, a copy of the insurance code that permits you to make arbitrary and capricious decisions such as this on my behalf.

INSURANCE COMPANY REINSTATES ROAD SERVICE POLICY

Dear Letter Writer:

On Sept. 22, 1983, I received a letter from my insurance company telling me that their records indicate that I have had 21 claims on my road service coverage since 1967 and that they have terminated my motor club membership effective 12:01 on 9/21/83. Please help me.

Sincerely, Mrs. C

Dear Insurance Company:

I am in receipt of your ludicrous letter of Sept. 22, 1983.

My mathematics indicate that 21 claims since 1967 equals 1.31 claims per year for the last 16 years.

Please provide me, immediately, with a copy of the "Official Service Contract Manual" and, most importantly, a copy of the insurance code that permits you to make arbitrary and capricious decisions such as this on my behalf.

I look forward to hearing from you no later than Tuesday, Oct. 10, 1983.

Sincerely, Mrs. C.

RESOLUTION:

This is an extract from the letter received by Mrs. C on Oct. 12,

1983. "After careful consideration, it has been decided that your membership will be reinstated."

Carrier of the Week

Joseph Long

Joseph Long is a young businessman with a philosophy that has proven successful... "I'm nice."

That definition of his business secret must be effective, as Joseph, 12, has been named Carrier of the Week by the Associated Newspaper Circulation Department.

Joseph has only had his route of 23 customers in Romulus for about a year, but in that time has had no customer complaints and a high rate of collections.

He is a seventh grade student at Romulus North Junior High School where his favorite subject is mathematics.

Joseph applied for the vacant route, "Well, because I wanted some extra money" and has been very happy with his new job. "I just try to get the papers to all my customers right on time and all the people on my route are right in my neighborhood and they are really nice," he commented.

The son of Thomas and Virginia Long, Joseph loves all sports and especially football and baseball. While he plays for recreation, he doesn't belong to any organized league.

Joseph is saving his money and plans on attending college but hasn't as yet decided on a career.

Carriers of the week will be selected by the Associated Newspapers Circulation Department based on prompt payment of bills, fewest customer complaints and overall outstanding achievement.

Pickets plan to attend restaurant opening

By DENNIS NIEMIEC
Feature Editor

Guess who's coming to dinner for the special grand opening of Chuck Muer's Mama & Pasta's restaurant next Thursday evening in downtown Wayne?

Guests at the $25-a-ticket fundraiser for the Wayne-Westland Foundation for the Improvement of Instruction will be greeted by steelworker pickets, according to Harry Lester, District 29 director of the United Steelworkers of America.

The steelworkers will be on hand to protest an ongoing labor dispute at the Muer-owned Grand Concourse restaurant in Pittsburgh, Pa., Lester said.

All 160 tickets for the fundraiser, which starts at 5:30 p.m., have been sold with proceeds to assist several special programs in the public school system.

"We (steelworkers) are going to adopt his (Muer's) restaurants until this strike is settled," Lester explained Tuesday. "It was organized two years ago and the employees went on strike Aug. 12. Their average wage was $3.24."

Assertive DisciplineTyler tries unique programBy PAT RICHARDS
ANP Special Writer

Sh-h-h! You can't hear a sound in the halls at Belleville's Tyler Elementary School these days. The children walk down the halls without talking. Teachers do not yell. No paddle is used and students are taking pride in their work.

The program is called Assertive Discipline. It stresses the positive accomplishments of students and down plays the negative. It's very simple. When a school has written rules that set firm, consistent, positive limits, and has written consequences, and everyone knows those rules — the teachers, the children, and the parents — a peaceful atmosphere develops. Everyone knows what will happen if a rule is broken.

Teachers are teaching and children are learning.

After all, isn't this what school is all about?

There are five basic building rules at Tyler.

1. No fighting.
2. Keep your hands, feet and objects to yourself.
3. We will respect people and property.

4. We will act with courtesy in the building.

5. We will use appropriate behavior outside the building.

Specific consequences are given for each rule. For instance, fighting in school results in a parent conference. The second time it happens, there is a one-day suspension.

How does Assertive Discipline affect the school? Judy Sweet, a substitute teacher, put it this way: "I can walk into Tyler and sense that there is order in the school. Before I am even in the classroom or in the office, I can feel it in the air."

"The first couple of days that I subbed this year, I found myself feeling suspicious," she said. "What are the students really doing? I knew a couple of the kids from last year. One of two who just wouldn't do their work and would even go out of their way to make trouble."

"I found myself leaving my desk to see what they were really doing," Mrs. Sweet continued. "And they were really doing their work."

"I find I'm more relaxed," smiled Judy. "I'm certainly enjoying the kids more because of this Assertive Discipline policy. The students enjoy participating and feel pride in themselves because they are doing their work. The kids like it. Even the ones that will never admit it are proud of the work they're learning."

"It's working both ways," she concludes. "The teachers are teaching more and the kids are learning more. The kids are proud," she repeats. "This is what I'm seeing. And I just love it! — from walking in the door in the morning until I walk out the door at the end of the day."

What do the teachers think of Assertive Discipline? "I think we were all kind of amazed at the first assembly we had at Tyler this year. The students walked in quietly. There was no talking. They sat down and the feeling was one of pride," commented Sandy Belcher.

Mary Lou Feight agreed, "I was so proud of our students in the hall that day. Third, fourth, fifth, and sixth graders had to wait about five minutes before they could enter. They were so-o-o quiet. It was amazing."

"Yes," added Barb Woody. "The speaker commented that she wished that she had a videotape to show to other schools how wonderfully our students entered and behaved during that assembly." Barb laughed, "I think we're all sold."

"I know I'm sold," replied Mary Lou. "The kids do not make excuses about what they have done. They did it and they know the consequences."

"Another reason I like this policy," Mary Lou concluded, "is that I am able to teach from 8:30 until dismissal instead of spending my time disciplining."

There are posted building rules and there are posted room rules. At Tyler, the rules are the same for the third and fourth grades and then the fifth and sixth grades have mutual rules. School and room rules are very specific. There are subpoints under each rule. Assignments are a part of the classroom rule.

"The policy helps me to keep closer tabs as to when my kids assignments are not done," remarked Rosemary Anderson. "If there are four zeroes in any one week (for the third and fourth grades), we call home." Calling a parent is our most effective recourse.

In the fifth and sixth grades, the parents are sent a letter on the second missing assignment and called on the third missing assignment.

"I'm sure," said Pat Richards, "that in a few years, we will see students who are more educationally prepared because of our new policy. To have assignments completed and completed on time will become a habit."

Do the students like the rules?

One boy put it bluntly, "They stink! I can't run up the slide anymore."

Beth Tompkins, a sixth grader, remarked, "I think the new rules are good. You guys needed to discipline us more. We come to school to learn and work and not to goof off."

Amy Byrd, a fifth grader, said, "I like it. The school is quieter and so is the classroom. The rules aren't that hard to get used to. I also like the treats at the end of the month."

There are three types of reward systems at Tyler. Each classroom has its own reward for good behavior. Good behavior can be as simple as holding open a door or a courteous comment or a helpful gesture.

Secondly, gold slips are given out generously to deserving students and a school drawing is held at the end of each month. Thirty children are winners. Even a child who has received a pink slip for breaking a rule can receive gold slips for good behavior.

Finally, an activity is planned for all students who have not broken a rule during the month. After the activity, all pink slips are torn up and every child starts each new month with a clean slate.

Do all parents like the system? The greatest majority are very supportive and pleased. But let's hear it from the other point of view.

Mrs. Loretta Bradbury, a parent of three children attending Tyler, says, "My kids tell me it's almost run like a military school. I'm not a teacher. Maybe if I were, I'd think the rules were great. I can understand both points of view."

"No one wants to put up with screaming kids and they shouldn't have to," continued Mrs. Bradbury. "I know kids can exaggerate. At first, I did not like the rules. I think I'm mellowing, but I still disagree with a few of the rules."

The office has seen "fewer discipline problems," according to secretary Joanne Osborne. "The children are much more helpful than they were in the past. The children are aware that they will be rewarded for doing something nice. I try to remember to reward them. The positive approach is definitely working."

Tyler's Assertive Discipline policy was set up with the aid of Carolyn Rakotz through the Wayne County Intermediate School District. "The biggest mistake that parents and teachers can make," she stresses, "is to ignore our kids when they are acting appropriately. Rewards do work!"

County jail costs are soaring

Over-run construction costs for the new Wayne County jail will reach $9,850,000 and drain some $3 million left in the jail escrow account, according to a report completed this week by the county's Auditor General office and announced jointly by County Commissioners Richard E. Manning and Mary E. Dumas.

The report stems from a three week investigation conducted by Lester Robinson, Auditor General, and requested by the two commissioners who chair the Audit and Public Safety and Judiciary Committees, respectively.

Following payment of some $4 million for phase one and two of the jail, county commissioners approved a "guaranteed" $37 million contract to complete construction (Phase III). Commissioners stipulated, at the time, that no further funds could be spent without their approval. When the commissioners discovered the $37 million contract had ballooned to nearly $47 million last month, leaving the county without funds to equip and operate the jail, then demanded an immediate investigation by the Auditor General.

Police seek purse thief

A Wayne woman was the victim of a purse snatching last week near the Hungry Howie's restaurant on Wayne Road.

According to police reports, the woman left the store to return to her car parked in the lot when a man approached her from the rear, bent her arm behind her and forced her to release her handbag. The purse contained a small amount of money and personal belongings, she told the responding officers.

Two men, described by the victim as in their late 20s were observed and involved in the theft, she said. They escaped the scene on foot.

Wayne police are investigating the incident.

Part of the $13 million will be spent to house prisoners in DeHoCo, near Northville, until court action determines whether Detroit must maintain the facility or whether it will come under the county's administration.

Mrs. Dumas said no date has been set to open the new jail.

Defense contract is awarded

A large business in Romulus has received a contract totaling $263,028 from the Defense Construction Supply Center (DCSC) of Columbus, Ohio. The General Motors Corp. of 36501 Van Born Road, will provide cylinder heads for use by the U.S. military services.

With an inventory of over 350,000 items, the Center last year bought over $45 million worth of items that ranged from lumber and wood products to plumbing accessories such as pipe, pumps, valves and fittings.

Repair parts are purchased for vehicles as simple as commercial trucks and sedans and as complex as military aircraft, ships and submarines.

DCSC also buys such major end items as tractors, cranes, road machinery, forklifts and mechanized materials handling equipment. DCSC is a field installation of the Defense Logistics Agency, Washington, D.C.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Save some fresh herbs for later. Rinse sprigs of parsley or basil and shake dry. Freeze in a plastic bag. When leaves are frozen, crush lightly and place in a glass jar — tightly closed — to store in the freezer.

Steaming keeps flavor and nutrients in. A whole chicken will steam in 40 to 45 minutes. (Herbs in the steamer water will scent and flavor the chicken.)

Party cheese spread calls for 7 ounces Brie cheese (remove the rind), 2 ounces Roquefort or bleu cheese, 3 Tbs. sweet butter at room temperature, and 1/2 cup whipping cream. Smooth in the processor with a grinding of white pepper. Serve on French bread.

Use tongs for turning chicken pieces or steaks while you cook. Tongs won't pierce the flesh, so juices will stay in the meat.

Italian-style cake laced with almond liqueur

Italian Sour Cream Cake starts with an interesting meringue mixture, flavored with brown sugar, coconut and ground pecans. The meringue lines the bottom and sides of the tube pan and bakes to form a soft "crust" surrounding the moist cake inside.

The cake is made with pudding-included butter recipe cake mix, and the recipe adds sour cream and almond-flavored liqueur to the batter. A chocolate glaze flavored with more almond liqueur tops the cooled cake. Chopped pecans and maraschino cherries provide an attractive garnish.

Italian Sour Cream Cake

2 eggs, separated
½ cup firmly-packed brown sugar
1 cup coconut
½ cup ground pecans or nuts

1 pkg. Pillsbury Plus Butter Recipe Cake Mix

1 cup dairy sour cream
 ½ cup almond flavored liqueur
 ½ cup water
 2 eggs

Glaze

1 cup powdered sugar, sifted
 2 tablespoons cocoa
 2 tablespoons almond flavored liqueur
 1 tablespoon margarine or butter, softened
 1 tablespoon corn syrup
 2 to 4 teaspoons water
 2 teaspoons ground pecans or nuts
 6 maraschino cherries

Heat oven to 350°F. Using 2 tablespoons shortening, generously grease 10-inch tube pan. In small bowl, beat 2 egg whites until foamy. Gradually add brown sugar; beat until stiff peaks form, about 3 minutes. Fold in coconut and ½ cup ground pecans. Spread meringue on bottom and up sides of pan to within 1 inch of top of pan. In large bowl, blend cake mix, sour cream, ½ cup liqueur, ½ cup water, eggs and 2 egg yolks at low speed until moistened; beat 2 minutes at highest speed. Pour batter evenly into prepared pan. Bake at 350°F. for 55 to 65 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Cool upright in pan 10 minutes; loosen sides and invert onto serving plate. Cool completely. In small bowl, blend powdered sugar, cocoa, 2 tablespoons liqueur, margarine, corn syrup and water until smooth. Spoon over top of cake, allowing some to run down sides. Sprinkle with 2 teaspoons ground pecans; garnish with cherries. 16 servings.

potpourri

BY LEE SMITH
Suburban Living Editor

We've yet to find that pot of gold, supposedly deposited at the end of the rainbow, but, by jove, we did discover that legendary street paved-with-gold that so many early emigrants had visualized as "being" America.

Enroute home from Michigan's west coast recently, we did a little meandering in order to savor the glorious autumn pageantry without putting our lives in jeopardy along the freeway.

In the little city of Concord (appropriately nestled near the state's wine country) we chanced upon a quiet street overwhelmed by yellow maples aburst with their foliage, their proximity to each other creating a cathedral archway of boughs and their droppings forming an avenue of fallen golden leaves plastered tightly against the pavement by the wetness of the day. Even tire prints failed to sully that lush, amber carpet. We drove past the area twice, not quite believing the awesomeness of the scene the first time.

In crossing county after county that Sunday afternoon, we were treated to a botanical exhibit the likes of which October has failed to produce in recent years. Hilly terrains provided panoramic views of maples, elms, birches, oaks, dogwoods, poplars, hawthorns and sumacs flamboyant in their fall finery.

Even the blueberry bushes dotting much of the South Haven region had changed to purplish dress for the grand performance. Burning bushes (no misnomer there) were at full strength in most instances with others diminished to shades of rose or pink in still other settings.

Vibrant and made strikingly sharp and clean by day-long showers, the amber and crimson families vied for 4-star autumn honors with their burgundy-mauve kinsfolk. Then there were the stately pines — and it is our imagination or are they deeper in color this year? Their darkness provided the contrast which showed all the other paint palette samples to their fullest potential.

It was a good day to be on the road and off the beaten path. Not only did we drive through places which are otherwise just green and white directory signs along the highway — Stephensville, Watervliet, Covert, Bangor, Galesburg, Augusta — but we learned that cauliflower is as indigenous to those parts as are huckleberry patches and grape arbors. Fish hatcheries also abound as does that "special" crop from Battle Creek.

Years since we'd been in the cereal capitol of the world, we were saddened by the lack of life in the city and dismayed at the neglected condition of so much of Fort Custer. Our firstborn was a mere three weeks old when we made the long trek (via US-12 back then) to see her godfather before he shipped out to army duty in Germany. We'd not realized the vastness of the Custer installation or how much it must have contributed to the economy of its nearby city.

A stop for coffee on its fringes reaffirmed our endorsement of pots of coffee for each table, thereby relieving servers of the tedious task of refills and freeing them for more important details.

We found raspberries (isn't it great to have them in October?) and other produce for sale along the road and were surprised to find a stand unmanned and using the honor system for its sales. (Can you believe that?)

Routing ourselves through Marshall brought back memories of a long-ago dinner — special since we had to travel SO FAR, had pinched pennies just for Win Schuler's and had shared it with friends, one of whom is no longer with us. We marveled at the wonderful old homes and their varied and often intricate architecture, the care with which they've been preserved, their sweeping lawns and, of course, the magnificence of their colorful wooded settings.

It'd already been a fun weekend, sharing part of it with two-thirds of our family and helping celebrate an eighth anniversary. You might recall that place in Stephensville — Tosci's — that once filled a "potpourri"? It's still an A-1 place to dine — the veal dishes and pasta are superb not to mention the made-on-the-premises desserts which are divine. Be sure to visit the bakery adjacent to The restaurant if you ever get there. Believe it or not, we just looked — didn't touch, taste or buy!

And wasn't it a coincidence that after Albion and Spring Arbor came Jackson. And wasn't it strange where our wheels took us! What I'd like to know is why I didn't see any of those who called me

'Gifted education' is topic at Junior Study Club meeting

The October meeting of the GFWC Belleville Junior Study Club was held at the Chaney Street home of vice-president Gloria Gardner Oct. 19. The meeting was attended by 25 members and guests, including prospective members Jan McMillan, JoAnn Tadrick, Pam Brady, Debbie Howey and Nancy McGuire.

The program for the evening was presented by Mary Angela Winter, coordinator of the Gifted Education Program in the Van Buren Public Schools. This program was of special interest to the Study Club, which first approached the VBPS about the need for this program in the early 1980's.

Club members each brought hand-crafted ornaments to be used on the Giving Tree. Plans were made to decorate the tree in the lobby of National Bank of Detroit on Main Street, Belleville, Nov. 14. Community members may then take one of the hand-crafted ornaments home free of charge in return for a small gift suitable for a needy child in the area. Final plans were also made to co-host the "Ingathering," the annual open house at Girlstown Nov. 5.

The next meeting will be Nov. 16. The speaker will cover alcohol and drug abuse. Any woman interested in receiving an "obligation" invitation to attend this meeting should contact Belleville Junior Study Club president Nancy Sawyer at 697-0764.

Newcomers on the sceneSarina Anne Rodriguez

The birth of their second daughter, Sarina Anne, is announced by Anthony and Toni Rodriguez of 48726 Sully Dr., Belleville.

The 9 lb. - 4 ½ oz. infant, who measured 21 ½ inches, made her debut at 4:31 p.m. Oct. 19 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor.

She has a sister, Sara Elita, who's 20 months old, and a quartet of grandparents: Marcia Snyder of Belleville; Flor Bustamante and Fernando Rodriguez, both of Detroit, and William Snyder of Ypsilanti.

Her great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ydrogo, reside in Quemado, Tex.

The newcomer's mother is the former Toni Snyder.

Brandon Alan Hindman

"It's a boy!" was the word that went out Sept. 10 following the birth of Brandon Alan Hindman, the first child born to Alan and Lori Hindman of 14324 Cogswell

Road, Romulus.

The new heir, who weighed 7 lbs. - 6 ozs. and measured 19 ½ inches, bowed in at 10:07 a.m. at Wyandotte General Hospital.

He is the new grandson of Sally and Arthur Oldham and Betty and Steve Rzempala, all of Romulus. Great-grandparent honors go to Natalie Schwuchow of Wyandotte; Audrey Martin of Romulus and Betty Heins of Trenton.

The new mother is the former Lori Oldham.

'Ingathering' set for Nov. 5 at Girlstown

The GFWC Belleville Junior Study Club will host the traditional "Ingathering" open house at Girlstown for the fourth consecutive year Nov. 5, from 1 to 4 p.m. This year's open house will be co-sponsored by the GFWC Vassar Woman's Club.

Girlstown, which is owned and operated by the Michigan State Federation of Womens Clubs, provides a safe place of residence and care for young girls. Once a year, Girlstown opens its doors to interested persons, giving Michigan club women an opportunity to renew their commitment to Girlstown as the state project.

Some 300 persons are expected to attend this year's event. Girlstown is frequently in need of services which could be provided by other area service groups and interested citizens. Anyone wishing more information on the needs of Girlstown, or who would care to send a representative to the Ingathering is urged to contact Belleville Junior Study Club president Nancy Sawyer at 697-0764.

A QUICKIE DESSERT, ANYONE?

AS WE HEADED westward that weekend, we had time to investigate the new mall near Battle Creek. Its a nice one and handy for ons and offs from I-94. Entering through Hudson's housewares department, we were just in time for a food demo featuring a variety of pizzas.

After enjoying a hearty sample (BG went for the regular pizza) we picked up the recipes which I figured some of you might like to try, too. Easy enough for the kids to do (or at least garnish) here are the easy steps for a dessert pizza.

Mix 2 cups Bisquick and ½ cup cold water until a soft dough forms. Roll out to fit a pizza pan and bake for 5 to 8 minutes at 425 degrees.

Spread crust with peanut butter mixed with honey and top with raisins, banana slices, chopped or whole walnuts, pineapple chunks and coconut. Sprinkle coarsely grated mozzarella cheese over all and bake until cheese melts.

They served it with an icy cider punch so — there's a dessert for your next impromptu gathering.

ITS ORIGINS IF YOU PLEASE

HAVING USED the term "A-1" a few graphs back and having background on it in my portfolio, I can tell you quickly where the phrase originated. A-1 was first used in the register of British and Foreign Shipping issued for the great maritime insurance firm, Lloyd's of London. They rate the world's merchant shipping by a combination of letters to indicate the condition of the hull and numbers to indicate the condition of the equipment. Thus A-1 means the hull is excellent and so is all the ship's gear. Now that's a simple one!

THE BOTTOM LINE — Complimenting a fellow's work will improve his effort more than calling attention to his errors.

Wilson-Johnson repeat vows

Christ Temple Baptist Church was the setting Aug. 27 for the double ring ceremony which united Pamela Denise Johnson and Ronald Edward Wilson in marriage.

Some 150 relatives and friends attended the five o'clock rite conducted by The Rev. Steven Riley including the young couple's parents, Carlise and Pearlene Johnson of Romulus and Roosevelt Wilson and Pauline Roach of Ypsilanti.

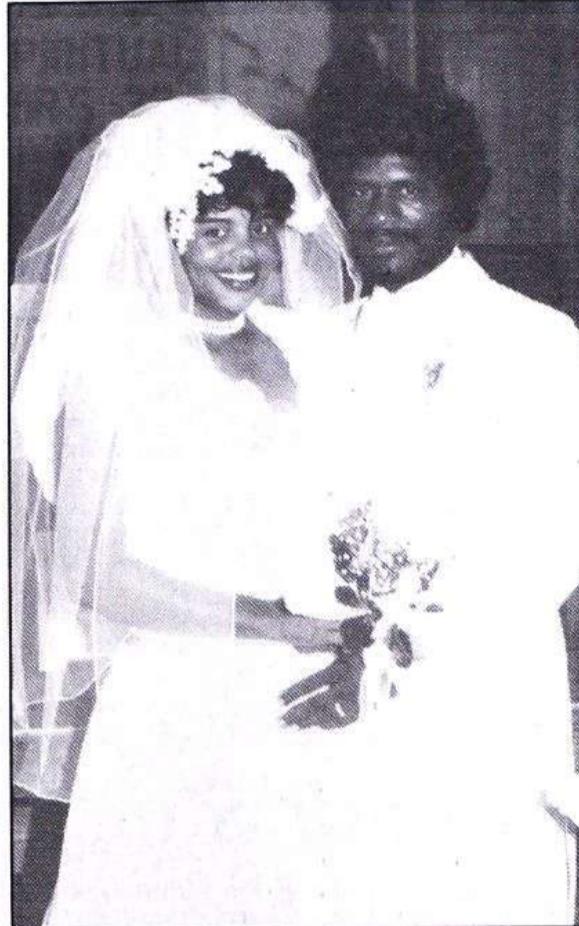

Escorted up the aisle by her father, the bride appeared in a sleeveless white lace gown designed with a ruffled deep "V" neckline and toe-touching skirt. She wore a crescent headpiece of silk roses and lilies of the valley and held a white lace fan accented with cymbidium orchids and baby's breath.

Sheila Stewart of Romulus was her sister's honor attendant and bridesmaids included Angel Edwards, Lisa Edwards, Tamara Brown and Karen Browell, all of Romulus, and Michelle Slator and Norma Alexander, both of Ypsilanti.

Youngsters in the bridal coterie were Patrice Carter, the daughter of Tamara Brown and Peter Carter, who was flower girl, and Clifford Stewart, the son of Sheila and Melvin Stewart, who filled the role of ringbearer.

Following a reception for some 150 guests at Ypsilanti Local 1776, the newlyweds departed for a two weeks honeymoon in the southern states. On their return they took up residence at 8608 Mac Arthur, Ypsilanti.

Graduates of Willow Run High School and Romulus High School, respectively, the new Mr. and Mrs. Wilson are both employed by the Ypsilanti Press.

Short subjects

Summerfield-Marlin are wed

A five-day honeymoon at Mackinac Island and in Northern Michigan followed the Oct. 1 marriage of Cynthia L. Marlin, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd H. Marlin of South Bend, Ind., and Kelly A. Summerfield, the son of Dianne Summerfield of Romulus and Al Summerfield of West Bloomfield.

The Community Congregational Church in South Bend was reserved for the four o'clock nuptials at which The Rev. John Staples presided. Two spray arrangements of peach gladiolas and rust mums graced the altar for the candlelight double ring ceremony.

Julie King provided organ and piano music with vocal numbers being sung by Mrs. Mike Minnes and Lisa Mieke.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white organza, the little fitted bodice being designed with a high lace collar above an illusion yoke frosted with Venetian lace, pearls and sequins. Long bishop sleeves and a flounce-trimmed chapel train provided other styling details on the gown.

Her fingertip veil of silk illusion, held by a matching lace cap, was banded with Venetian lace and lace roses. Completing her bridal finery was a bouquet of white silk roses, lilies of the valley and sweet peas tied with satin streamers.

Maid of honor was the bride's sister, Diana L. Marlin of Mishawaka, Ind. Her full-length peach satin gown with rust orange blossoms featured a V-neckline and a matching chiffon cape. Rust and white silk roses formed her headpiece with similar flowers used in her bouquet.

Wearing identical ensembles were the trio of bridesmaids: Mrs. Tom Raptis of Phoenix, Ariz. and Mrs. Ron Laskowski and Kelly Deshone, both of South Bend.

Randy Pichan of Grand Valley, Mich. served as best man with Ron Rafalski, Tim Summerfield, brother of the bridegroom, and Steve Hellum, both of Romulus; Sam Marlin of South Bend, the bride's brother; and Bill Marks of Kennebunkport, Me. making up the corps of groomsmen.

Youngsters holding baskets of rice for guests going through the receiving line were Jack Rittenhouse of Elwood, Ind.; Bob Howard of Alexandria, Ind., Jeanne Sowash of Elwood and Claudia Howard of Alexandria, cousins of the bride. Laurie Summerfield, sister of the bridegroom, was in charge of the guest book.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Marlin selected an ivory chiffon gown to which she pinned her corsage of cymbidium orchids. Identical flowers were worn by the bridegroom's mother who donned a burgundy chiffon gown for the occasion.

Some 325 guests attended the reception which followed at the Eagle Lodge in South Bend. Assisting were June Sowash, Betty Trimble, Janet Godberry, Mrs. Jeanine Rittenhouse and Mrs. Kathy Sanders.

A graduate of Clay High School, the new Mrs. Summerfield attended Ball State University in Muncie, Ind. and is now working at Manufacturer's Bank of Novi. Her husband, an alumnus of Huron High School, received his bachelor of science degree in architecture from Lawrence Institute of Technology in Southfield after having attended Ball State. He is currently working at Total Concepts Corp in Southfield.

We endorse: Oakley for mayor

It is a rare election year in Romulus. Rare, because the usual controversy that surrounds the bi-annual affair is absent of political mudslinging and derogatory rhetoric.

And the credit for all of this should go to the two excellent candidates who covet the office of mayor: incumbent William Oakley and Beverly McAnally. Both have discussed the issues and what they feel they can accomplish for the residents and the community.

They deserve the admiration of all of the citizens of the community who know first hand from past politics that elections can be very messy.

Just glance over to Westland and Inkster where politicians have forgotten they are running to serve the people, not to become dictators over them.

Now in this risky business of endorsements, how do you choose the best?

In the case of the mayor's race, it was difficult.

However, we believe that the incumbent, William Oakley, has done the job. He is honest and has provided for an honest administration. And, thus, you do not fire one who has worked in the interest of all in the community.

We believe that William Oakley should be returned to office for a fourth term to continue his work in a time when economic pressures threaten small and large communities alike.

A quiet man who has done the job well, William Oakley deserves your support and your vote on November 8.

Lewkowicz for treasurer

It is unfortunate that Beverly McAnally decided to vacate the City Treasurer's office, but we believe that there is a man standing in the wings who can come in and continue the laborious and important work of finance. He's John Lewkowicz, former city treasurer.

Mr. Lewkowicz would not be "training on the job". His past experience provides him with the knowledge to do the job. He is also not one to accept "facts and figures" without checks and balances. Mr. Lewkowicz, as the former city treasurer, proved to the blatantly arrogant Wayne County Drain Commissioner that just because fees are collected by him for one job doesn't necessarily mean they shouldn't be accounted for.

Mr. Lewkowicz sued the county drain commissioner and won a substantial settlement for the city and several surrounding communities. It is this kind of fiscal responsibility the people of Romulus need in the Treasurer's Office at this time.

Cantrell for Clerk

The fate of the City Clerk's office for the past two years has been in the hands of Raymond Cantrell. Mr. Cantrell is learning on the job, and he is the first to say that he has made some mistakes. But he has also helped to eliminate some of the problems that have plagued the department.

We believe that the past two years have provided Mr. Cantrell with the knowledge to run an efficient and business like department. He should be allowed to continue his work for the next two years.

... And for City Council

The mainstays of the City Council — Mary Ann Banks, Jimmie Raspberry and Fred Junior Block — should remain intact. These three veterans have shown proven ability to provide the checks in a strong mayoral form of government.

Mrs. Banks' roots are deep in the community. She has won statewide acclaim as a person who weighs her options before making a decision. Ironically, because she has gained recognition by county and state officials, Mrs. Banks now has a decision to make. Her fame has stirred some controversy. She was appointed to the Wayne County Road Commission and some question her decision to "serve two masters".

Whether a court will have to rule about the legitimacy of the appointment or not, Mrs. Banks deserves to be returned to council.

As does Mr. Raspberry.

Knowledgeable in the ways and means of city administration, and a scholar of the City Charter, one can never "put one over on Mr. Raspberry." He has the wit and the smarts to destroy his opposition and he offers the wisdom needed for his city.

Mr. Raspberry should have no problems gaining voter support on Tuesday. He has our vote.

Neither should Mr. Block, who has been the voters' favorite over the past decade. Mr. Block approaches a problem with a "common sense" attitude and has the respect of all. (We don't think he has an enemy in the world).

Add to the three veteran lawmakers names, the names of Peter Bergeron and Barry Baumann who have done exceptionally well as first term councilmen.

Bergeron has an impact on his colleagues that demands respect and strengthens the law-making process. He will challenge a view that appears to have substantial evidence, and he can tear to shreds those who are not prepared to discuss a topic.

Mr. Bergeron deserves a second term.

Chamber backs school millage

The Romulus Area Chamber of Commerce, Board of Directors is endorsing the two school millage proposals being presented on the ballot November 8th, and urges you to vote "yes" on these two proposals.

In connection with the millage proposals the Romulus Chamber of Board of Directors has reviewed the financial needs of the Romulus School District and we are convinced that millage is needed so that Romulus Schools can keep pace with other school districts in the state, country, in fact the whole world. Approval of the millage proposals will help produce students who are well prepared for either the highly competitive job market or college. If we don't help our own children for the best possible education; who will?

America's greatness was achieved by a strong, locally controlled public school system. Because other countries are now emphasizing education, we are being challenged to improve our school systems to keep pace. We can take up the challenge by approving the two school millage proposals November 8th.

Your chamber of commerce is proud of the fact that approximately two-thirds of the taxes paid in Romulus are paid by business and industry. Whether Chamber members are residents or property owners conducting business in Romulus, we take pride in the contributions we are making in terms of tax base.

For every $1.00 the residential community of Romulus contributes, in the form of tax dollars, the business and industrial community of Romulus contributes $2.00 to the school district. The members of the Romulus Chamber of Commerce do not mind shouldering this financial responsibility because we are keenly aware of the importance of a sound educational system to the image and welfare of our community and students. Further, tax laws have recognized the citizens 65 years and older have already done their share in supporting the school system. These senior citizens are eligible for a homestead tax credit and depending on income would receive a reduced liability.

In summary, people want to live where there are adequate schools and proper education for their children. Further, a good educational system usually means a better job opportunities, better workers, better customers, and better citizens, and consequently a better Romulus.

Therefore, Romulus Chamber of Commerce urges you to vote "yes" on the two school millage proposals being presented on the ballot November 8th.

LEO M. KALOTA

President

Romulus Chamber of Commerce

So does Mr. Baumann, who has the skill and potential to becoming one of the city's better councilmen. Mr. Baumann has near perfect attendance at all of the council meetings and will not hesitate to offer an unpopular opinion if he believes it is in the best interests of the citizens.

To round out the council line-up, we ask you to cast your votes for Roger Cadaret and John Lewis.

Mr. Cadaret is an attorney who can offer the council and the city a qualified point of view on a wide range of topics and subjects. He has diligently worked for the betterment of the community and the schools and deserves a term on council to help solve some and find new ways of solving old problems.

Mr. Lewis is the former Romulus Youth Officer and has served the public for the past 14 years as a Wayne County Sheriff's Deputy. He has displayed dedication to the city and to the residents and his voice will be an important one on council.

Although, in these pressing economic times it is difficult for us to recommend the passage of a school millage, we have seen with first-hand the dire need of repairs at Romulus High School where there is a gaping hole in the auditorium ceiling.

The school district, like hundreds of others across the state, is burdened with financial problems, due to the ailing economy. School officials are asking the passage of a total of 7½ mills to resolve some of the problems.

We believe Romulus and our school will be much better if the voters say "Yes" on Tuesday.

the other side of the Meridian

'Meet the Candidates'

Tom Mooradian
Managing Editor

The candidates have had their say. In Westland, Wayne, Inkster, Belleville. And Romulus.

And, by this time next week, voters will have had theirs.

There are some difficult decisions to be made.

We often wonder why people seek elective office. Why would they put themselves through this purgatory that usually nets them the contempt and ire of the voter?

We often wonder if it's worth the pain to inform the handful who will take time to go to the polls. We ask ourselves why are people so complacent when it comes to local elections, and, unmistakably elections are becoming more and more "popularity contests" rather than putting the best man or woman in office.

Like wound-up dolls playing a role, these candidates unceasingly tell us what we want to hear — they're going to lower taxes, find jobs for everyone, reduce racial tensions — bring people together.

And most are sincere, (a bit naive, though) when they first seek office.

And sitting on a stage at Romulus High School last Wednesday evening listening to some 20 candidates who seek the offices of mayor, clerk, treasurer and who had only a handful of concerned and interested citizens for an audience, I'm convinced that "Yes, it was worth it".

As a community and as a nation, we may have our problems, but as long as people can gather and assemble to discuss them we'll be all right. Oh yes, there are some who will pay lip service to the system in hopes of promoting themselves but, in general, the standard of those who covet elective office is one of honesty. The candidates believe they can serve and solve problems.

Most candidates I watched were nervous. Strained and searching for words. (Just like any reporter who is shoved in the role of moderating the discussion).

It is when these candidates turn their backs on those who put them in office that problems erupt. One may not be able to always spot honesty and sincerity, but one can always sense when someone is giving the other "a run around."

In the wake of the U.S. Marines tragedy in Beirut and the Grenada Incident, one can sense a restlessness in this nation which cries for justice. Never in the history of this nation did we need men of wisdom and strength to lead as we do now.

And those men and women receive their training on the "ground floor" in the city councils, township halls and commissions across this great nation.

And never before in the history of this country has the Press been called upon to report "fairly", to provide its readers with information that they can use to make decisions.

We are not being asked to be "objective" any more because each of us has likes and dislikes and they usually allow those prejudices to creep into the story. We are trying to be "fair" with those whom we deal and write about.

To those seeking elective office next Tuesday, we hope you reach your goal.

There are no losers in this one

EDITOR — Each year, the final football game of the season between John Glenn and Wayne Memorial High School is referred to as "The Game". Obviously the competition, esprit de corps, and pride generated within the student-body of each school provides a very healthy rivalry.

Although the highlights of the game will be long remembered and appropriately exaggerated, this game is just one manifestation of the quality high school program provided by our community.

Athletically the girls' and boys' teams at our high schools play each other at least once in sixteen different varsity sports each year. Many of these young people now competing at the high school level have played with our against each other since elementary school.

Winning is always important because no-one competes to lose. However, the paramount result of these games is the respect and sportsmanship which each contest fosters.

As Superintendent of the Wayne-Westland School District, I am extremely proud of the efforts both teams will display on the football field this Friday. The players, coaches, students, staffs, parents, booster clubs, and followers of each school have all worked for the success of their team. These young people and literally thousands of others in our two high schools work every day in academic endeavors, other athletic programs, after-school jobs and other experiences which prepare them for the "real world".

They need the same kind of support and encouragement in their individual pursuits that our football players enjoy.

As a community and a school district, Wayne-Westland has established an enviable record and a well earned reputation for providing an all around quality program for all students.

Good Luck to both of our teams: This is one game when my team always wins!

Wayne
homecoming
a success

EDITOR — I have just finished reading Sharon Popek's column of October 20, 1983 and am pleased to see the detailed coverage the 1983 Wayne Memorial Homecoming activities received.

While Homecoming does fall within the auspices of my office (and I thank you for the fine compliment), I would just like to say that credit should really go to all the wonderful students, parents and staff that helped to make this year's Homecoming a success.

Also, I would appreciate any recognition or credit you could give to some others that played important roles in bringing everything together. They include Mrs. Nita Casler, my secretary, Mr. Bill Brooks, our announcer and the other principals at Wayne who helped shoulder the load, Mr. Connolly, Mr. Galbraith and Mr. Winter.

I especially appreciate the coverage of the Eagle newspaper staff. No wonder our school slogan "Wayne Pride" stretches beyond the boundaries of the school and touches on the community.

Operation Bread Basket

EDITOR — For several weeks now, I have been debating whether to write this letter or not. Now the time has come when there is no other alternative, but to write it.

Several sets of volunteers have been working on Operation Bread Basket in the City of Westland, since its inception last January. Some of these volunteers have been on both levels of the spectrum — young adults and senior citizens and we worked well together and accomplished a good deal, besides helping those less fortunate than we are.

What I am complaining about, however, is the place we were assigned to distribute food. We were put in the basement store room of the Bailey Center.

I made a legitimate complaint at a City Council Meeting and addressed these complaints to the Mayor and was politely informed that no one else complained, therefore, nothing was done about it!

I complained to the Director of Parks and Recreation and she told me that this was not part of her job and it was up to the volunteers to keep it clean.

How in the world can you keep something clean and in order, when you work in an area that is filled with paint cans, broken chairs (which the people requesting food are forced to sit in, because there is nothing else available), Christmas decorations, trophies and what have you are in disarray all over the room where the food is sorted and boxed to be taken out by persons who have been screened before they are given their monthly allotment.

I can see the necessity of the screening, but I do not see the necessity of being shoved off in a part of a building that needs cleaning. When we attempt to sweep it up, there wasn't even a decent broom to work with!

We stacked empty boxes by the door, in order to have the debris carried out, only to go back and find it all put back where it was to begin with. What kind of treatment is this, given to volunteers with no pay to be treated?

To give you an example of the treatment some of these unfortunate people have been faced with, one gentleman, father of five was recently burned out of his home. He came on a day there was no food, due to the fact there was no one to deliver it, he became furious, because he was desperate. He went to the Mayor's Office and was told that "there was nothing he could do about it." He was referred to a member of his office staff, and was told the same thing. He came to live in Westland because he had heard it was a wonderful place to live and he wanted to know what happened to it? We'd like to know too!

This week we have been told that the program is to be phased out, due to lack of funds, as they have been used up. I noticed the hallways leading to the "store room" had been painted recently, but the store room was still in the same filthy condition. Perhaps the Mayor should take a hard look at what needs to be done and should the program be continued in the future, that we be given adequate space and a clean place in which to work. I feel that he wants to do the same thing to the Senior Citizens programs in the City of Westland and to shove us in a corner to fend for ourselves.

About Westland campaign literature

EDITOR — It is with regret and anger that I write this letter.

This past weekend I received the latest in a string of campaign literature promoting the virtues of the candidates seeking election to the Westland City Council.

I regret that any candidate seeking my vote would assume I was a fool.

I am angry because the mayor himself has entered this campaign of misrepresentation and half-truth.

This latest campaign material (black cover with a picture of the mayor on the back), is filled with lies, and misinformation, and is an insult to every citizen of Westland.

I expect that those candidates who underwrote this piece of trash, will shortly discover that the citizens of Westland are not fools. I personally intend to demand from the mayor a full explanation for such a campaign piece.

Two years ago, I voted for Charles Pickering. Quite some time ago I realized that I had made a mistake. It wasn't until last weekend that I realized how big a mistake it really was. I also voted for the four year term for mayor. That was another mistake.

I will not make another mistake.

I would never vote for candidates who would lie and distort the truth. Those who publish trash are trash themselves.

Why don't people vote?

Editor — Voter apathy is an ever-increasing problem in our democracy. What are its causes and cures?

Our fast-paced life style causes the would-be voter to often forget to go to the polls on Election day. He simply runs out of time and voting is not high on his list of priorities.

The Deckers: An agonizing choice

There was a story on the front page of Monday's Free Press about a Westland couple, Erik and Kelly Decker, whose five-month-old daughter, Samantha, is dying of a liver disease.

The story made the front page not because Samantha is dying (infants, sadly, die every day), but because her parents have chosen not to prolong her life by searching for a liver donor and submitting Samantha to the ordeal of a transplant operation.

The Deckers did not come by this decision easily. They seem to have researched the options thoroughly, from the cost of the total treatment program (possibly in excess of $150,000) to the chances of success (doctors say there is less than a one-percent chance of finding a matching donor, and, even if a donor could be found, they predict that Samantha's chances for surviving the operation are less than one-half of one percent).

Samantha's parents, after agonizing and soul-searching, have opted to allow Samantha's remaining days to be quality days — free from the confines of hospital beds and machines, free from unnecessary pain — and spent with the people who love her most.

Still, I can safely predict that there will be some who will loudly condemn the Deckers for their "selfishness". They will read that same article and come away thinking that they are "monsters" — that a child's life is worth any expense and — as some have already said — they have no right to make a life- or death-decision for their daughter.

And the Deckers, hoping for some understanding by allowing their words to be printed in the first place, will, instead, I'm afraid, be deluged by hate mail.

Still, there are others who will come to the Decker's defense by pointing out that it is not the Deckers, who are putting a price tag on Samantha's life, but the medical profession. If a liver transplant for a five-month-old infant is, as the doctors say, an "experimental" operation, then why can't it be underwritten by the profession? Why is it that nobody rails and cries at a community whose principal reason-for-being is to save lives, but who too often base decisions on which lives to save by the color of a person's money? A community that can virtually turn thumbs-down, without fear of condemnation, on the "victims" on whose behalf efforts to raise the necessary funds have failed?

But the money wasn't (and shouldn't have been) the prime factor in the Decker's final decision. The Deckers focused carefully, and with agonizing sensibility, on Samantha's chances for a sustained, good life. If her chances were, say, 50-50, would anybody doubt that the Deckers wouldn't have launched an all-out campaign to raise whatever money was needed?

Of course they would have. But a one-half of one percent chance for survival is a far cry from a 50 percent chance.

And that, ultimately, is the truth the Deckers had to face: that putting their beloved infant daughter through the painful rigors of a prescribed program that was nothing more than a shot in the dark, would be, as Mrs. Decker put it, "more for ourselves than for Samantha."

So let's hope the Deckers can put away their guilt now. Sack it, trash it, leave it by the side of the road. Because what they did, they did out of the noblest kind of love.

life will be one of giving the light of love and the joy of living.

This is my prayer for this newest little grandchild, this rosebud, this little girl, who at this moment is lying in her other grandmother's arms, her tiny hands reaching for the sunbeams glancing through the window, her sound of contentment giving the room a soft, warm glow.

God bless little Kelly Therese! God bless!

It's that time of year again for the mandatory cider run, not to mention fresh doughnuts. Besides, it's a great excuse for a Sunday drive, hopefully in or on something that makes your day good anyway! My favorites — and I won't name just so I'm not accused of partiality — are west of us near Ann Arbor. A great tour is scenic routes, open land and curvy roads... So try this one:

West on North Territorial beyond U.S. 23 to Webster Church Road. Watch for a small gas station-market on the southeast corner; turn left on Webster Church to Joy Road, right on Joy Road to Zeeb Road and south on Zeeb Road to the cider mill. Driving time from Plymouth is about 25 minutes. More time? Great! Then go south on Zeeb to Huron River Parkway. Turn right (west) and drive scenic to Dexter, to the other cider mill (an additional 15-minute drive).

Both have great doughnuts and various other treats, depending on which farmer came to town! Back track on the return except stay on Huron River Drive all the way to Ann Arbor. It's a great drive, but watch for touring bikes and note the all-weather canoers on the river.

I'm really working on Jim Druce, Pontiac sales manager at Red Holman, to convince him that we should test drive the fabulous Pontiac STE over this route. This car is far and away a tourer's dream car for it does it all! The standard handling package almost screams to be driven; the orthopedically designed buckets hold you while it's happening; and the whole time America's finest electronic instruments tell what's going on. There's even a rumor about that Pontiac's 5-speed trans will be tied to the 2.8-liter V-6 to complete the package.

I think Jim's problem is that STE's don't stay at Holman long enough to test drive! But I still try!

Pontiac also will pump a new turbo engine into the system this year... A 1.8-liter four that will move a 2000 Sunbird to 60 in nine seconds. At 150 HP you can still expect over 20 MPG in city driving. Now you just know that the drag strippers will be fine tuning this motor... no doubt taking a couple of seconds out of the 0-60 time!

Mindbenders... Give three valid reasons for not wearing a seatbelt... For driving after consuming more than one ounce of alcohol per hour? When I'm driving, each time I see that tell-tale shoulder harness I always get a feeling that that person is loved, or loves someone enough to exert that extra motion to buckle it up! Give it a thought, won't you?

Dateline Westland: All of you out there into trailer camping, please note: People interested in group travel and camping meet at Feister Trailer Sales, Newburgh and Ford Road, Nov. 27 at 4:30 for the Feister Camping Club organizational meeting. Pizza and beer to be furnished!

I'm pleased to announce my friend Tim Ray is the new sales manager at General Cycle in Lincoln Park... I met Jim Prendergast at Taylor AMC. Here's a foreign born guy who has jumped into the American free enterprise system with both feet. Talking to Jim gives you insight as to what hard work is all about... Go get 'em, Jim!

Dateline Wayne: Thanks very much to those of you kind enough to call with your acceptance of the column. It's a real lift to know it's being read! And the tips are great... Coming up are Cobra replicas in Romulus, a stock car racer from Lincoln Park, a sand trike with a Kawasaki 900 engine in Plymouth, etc. And the Street Stalker from Westland — watch for this one!!

Car Lot Prowling — A real nice '80 Scirocco at Seaway Motors in Dearborn, a VW Thing at Tyme in Plymouth, a short-bed Step at Lou LaRiche, talk to John Miller... the Red Baron.

Just installed on Alpine radio in our Ford Fiesta... finances dictated a fairly simple radio... At the advice of Mark Constatakis of Car Tunes in Westland, we went with an Alpine 7150 AM-FM stereo cassette. For just over $200 with speakers, I'll put the sound against most home stereos! Mark's tip is to put your money into a good radio, for durability and quality, and save a few bucks on speakers. This way you can afford to upgrade later, but still enjoy the sound now!

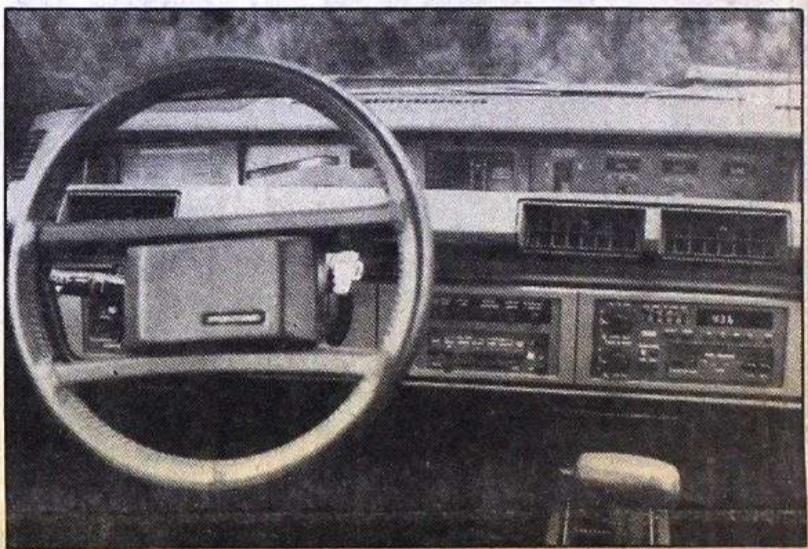

Don't forget — Watch Wheel World Thursday through Monday on the hour on your local Community Vision Cable channel. See cars for sale from local dealers and save gas money.

The 1984 6000 STE continues Pontiac's commitment to a clean, aerodynamic design with the six separate lamps — headlamps and fog lamps — setting the strong styling theme. The two-tone color theme and wide-body side moldings give the STE a sleek contemporary appearance. The STE for 1984 introduces the most advanced electronic control systems in Pontiac's history with a new electronic instrument panel, digital speedometer, analog electronic tachometer and electronic digital gauges. The gauges use a new bar chart readout to indicate fuel economy, voltage and temperature.

If you have a feature car, an idea or suggestion, please write to Wheel World P.O. Box 578, Wayne, 48184, or phone us at 729-4000.

Mazda takes first and second

Dr. Bob Reed, a Bakersfield, Calif. dentist, won his second consecutive Sports Car Club of America (SCCA) national championship at the wheel of a rotary-powered Mazda RX-7 sports car Oct. 23 at Road Atlanta Raceway. Reed finished about 10 seconds in front of a second Mazda RX-7 driven by John Finger, of Greenville, S.C. Third, half a car length behind Finger at the flag, was Morris Clement, Collinsville, Ill., in a Datsun 280Z.

This event, to decide SCCA's GT-2 class champion, was billed as a shootout between Datsun — perennial class champion until 1982 — and upstart Mazda.

"Rumor had it that Datsun wanted this title (back) real bad," reported Reed.

The race was won during the week of practice and testing, according to Reed, not just in Sunday's barnburning feature event. The fastest Datsun ZX competitors chose to use soft, sticky qualifying tires for the 45-mile sprint contest.

"We knew what they were doing," said Reed, "but we figured that those tires — which were designed to be used with wider wheels — would overheat (and lose their grip), if pushed too hard."

When the starter's flag dropped, Reed spurred into the lead and top Datsun qualifier, Jim Fitzgerald, of Clemmons, N.C., tried to slip in behind him. As the leaders entered the first turn, the Datsun collided with an RX-7 driven by third fastest qualifier, John Hogdal's, of Ham Lake, Minn. That momentary contact dropped Fitzgerald back about a second behind Reed. Hogdal's car retired with damaged front suspension.

"I drove as hard as I could for the first 3 or 4 laps," Reed continued, "and Fitzy ran real strong (right behind). Daryl (Drummond), my chief mechanic and engine builder, told me (by radio) that I was gaining about half a second per lap. Then — about the fourth lap — my 2-second lead stretched to 7 seconds. A lap later it was 11 seconds. Then 14." Reed let up by lowering his engine rpm and by braking earlier and easier for the turns.

"I just wanted to maintain my lead after that," said the repeat champion.

As Fitzgerald's tires lost their grip, Finger and Clement slipped by, relegating Fitzgerald to fourth position at the finish.

In the GT-4 finals, it was the new-generation front-wheel drive (FWD) machines against the older rear-wheel drive sedans. Dan Robson of Raleigh, North Carolina, racing a front-wheel drive Mazda GLC, chased Concord, Calif.'s Dave Carkhuff (behind the wheel of a dated, but well-prepared Datsun 510) across the finish line. Close behind was Jerry Barker, of Garden Grove, Calif., driving a factory-backed Mercury LN-7, which is also front-wheel drive.

Ron Tambourine, of Northbrook, Ill., brought his Mazda RX-3 home in third, just ahead of Coleman's fourth-place RX-3.

Dr. Bob Reed of Bakersfield, Calif., drifts his rotary-powered Mazda RX-7 through a turn at Road Atlanta Raceway on his way to a second consecutive national championship in the Sports Car Club of America's GT-2 category. Finishing second was Greenville, S.C., driver John Finger, also in an RX-7.

Corvette marks 30th year

The 750,000th Chevrolet Corvette built in the car's fabled 30-year history has rolled off the assembly line here.

The gleaming white 1984 Corvette was driven off the line by Wayne Vollmar, the only employee at the GM Assembly Division plant who has worked on the Corvette since its inception in 1953.

Vollmar, who joined GM as a painter at its St. Louis plant in 1948, remembers living in the old Durant Hotel in Flint, when initial Corvette production started in that city. He moved back to St.

Louis when Corvette production went there the following year, and followed the popular sports car's production to Kentucky in 1981.

Vollmar said the major changes he's seen in 30 years with the Corvette are "much better working conditions in the plant" — and the car itself.

"It took a long time to make this big improvement," he said. "I know they'll have more improvements, but they'll have to go a long way to make as big a one as they did with the '84."

Certain Corvettes stand out in Vollmar's memory, including a pink convertible built for the Dinah Shore Show and a Corvette built for Lyndon Johnson.

The milestone white 750,000th Corvette was equipped with Carmine leather seats, 4-plus-3 manual transmission, power door locks, Z51 handling package, a 3.07:1 rear axle ratio, electronic speed control and Delco/Bose sound system.

Purchased by Hugh Patterson, a resident of the Detroit area, the car was shipped to Bill Fox Chevrolet in Rochester.

Auto book for Christmas?

It's not too early to mention a really unique Christmas gift for any auto enthusiast acquaintance or relative you might have on your gift list. Any car buff will appreciate this cross-section of the emergence of GM from a smattering of a few small companies to the international corporation that we know today.

Created by a commission from General Motors to the Automobile Quarterly editors, the book reflects the quality that one would expect from these "parents". In the highest quality presentations, one can read the biography of General Motors, or, observe through the hundreds of color photos the continuing line of success of GM cars. From the highly styled Opel Camira to the venerable 1953 Buick Skylark convertible, from Corvette show cars to one-of-a-kind projects, trucks, buses, it's all there.

One cannot help but be impressed by the number and quality of photographs. The purchase price, $19.95 from first publication Dec. 2 until Jan. 1, 1984 and then $24.95 thereafter, is an investment if just for the pictures alone.

Cherry Hill's Ernie Johnson (25) attempts to get past an Allen Park defender in Saturday's Tri-River Conference finale. Johnson and his teammates weren't able to generate enough offense and would up losing 35-0 before a Homecoming crowd.

Allen Park spoils Spartan Homecoming

By HOWARD SCOTT
ANP Staff Writer

Going into his team's game against the Allen Park Jaguars, Cherry Hill Spartan football coach Jerry Pawloski said that his squad would have to score some points in order to be competitive.

He was right. But the Spartans again didn't have any success trying to perfect Pawloski's formulas. The Jaguars came to town for Homecoming, and left with a decisive 35-0 thrashing of the Spartans on their record.

Allen Park scored 13 points in the first quarter, eight in the second, and seven in each of the final two frames to bury the Spartans quickly. Meanwhile, Cherry Hill was struggling to get any momentum going.

"We didn't do much in the first half at all," said Pawloski. "But in the second half, I thought the kids showed some spark. We started to move the ball, but couldn't get it into the end zone."

Cherry Hill got the ball to the Allen Park 20 once in the half, but a penalty and a sack quickly took them too far from paydirt to get on the scoreboard.

"We had 100 yards total offense, and 91 of those were in the second half," said Pawloski. "We ran up 60 of them in the third quarter, but it's hard to get the kids to come back when they are that far down. There were good signs, though. We had eight first downs in the game, and that is a lot more than we have been getting lately."

The loss ended the Tri-River season for the Spartans with a 2-5 record. They are 3-5 overall, and will face Clarenceville at home this Saturday at 1:30 in the wind-up game for the autumn of 1983.

"They are a little bit closer to our size," said Pawloski. "The team is scrappy, and well coached. Clarenceville teams are always disciplined teams. Our games with them in the past have always been real competitive, hard hitting contests, and I expect no different this time around."

Canton breaks spell, wins first

During a weekend usually reserved for ghost, goblins, magical spells and evil beings, the Canton Chiefs finally broke the curse that has been following them all season long. They defeated Farmington, 14-0 Friday night for the first victory of the 1983 pigskin season, against seven losses.

"Our defense has played well all year," said Canton coach Richard Barr. "It was nice for the kids to get the win, and nicer yet for them to get the shutout."

"Our defense has played well all year," said Canton coach

The first half was a battle of frustration, as both teams went up and down the grid without getting the ball across the enemy's goal line. At the half, it was a scoreless tie, and the way things looked, it was a total possibility that the game could go on for quite awhile before the scoreboard was turned on.

Canton decided to change all of that in the third quarter. They came out determined to drive the ball, and that's what they did.

Quarterback Tony Aiken was the first Chief into the end zone, when he pushed the ball across on a two yard keeper. The marker was set up after Canton's Dave Knapp had recovered a Farmington fumble and returned it 35 yards to the two yard marker.

Jim Kaske finished the TD off

In tune with Spartans

Finding his road blocked is Cherry Hill's Mike Merriman (33) who is tackled by an Allen Park defender. The Jaguars ruined Homecoming festivities for Coach Jerry Pawloski's Spartans who apparently have lost their way to the end zone.

Canton's Chiefs

with a successful kick to make it 7-0.

It was another Farmington miscue that gave the Chiefs their final touchdown of the game. This time, Steve Marchand got in front of a Farmington pass and reeled it in to give the Chiefs possession again. Rod Williams then made it count by racing 15 yards to score. Another kick by Kaske finished the scoring for the evening.

Williams ended up as the leading round gainer for the winners with 53 yards total. Defensively, the entire band of Chiefs did the job, since they allowed the Farmington offenders to the Canton 30 only once all night.

The Belleville Tigers are on tap for the Chiefs this week, and coach Barr would like nothing better than for his squad to bag a bengal in the last game of the year.

"They are a fast, decent football team," Barr said of Belleville, which will host the game. "As usual, we will have our hands full."

Chargers chew up Bulldogs for 1st win

By HOWARD SCOTT
ANP Staff Writer

Livonia Churchill's Head football coach Ken Kaestner doesn't mind admitting that he wishes he could turn the clock back about two months. His football team has now won two straight games, and they are playing with the flair and inspiration many expected of them all season long.

"Yeah, it would be nice if we were just starting the season instead of ending it," said Kaestner, following his team's 20-7 whipping of the Bentley Bulldogs. "I'm really happy for the kids, though. They have really come around."

The Chargers entered Friday's game against Bentley fresh from their upset win of Farmington Harrison the previous week. That win was only their second of the year against five defeats.

"The kids were still peped up from the Harrison game coming into this one," said Kaestner. "That win really worked in our favor."

Churchill quarterback John Stoitsiadis had been a major factor in the Harrison win, and he took up where he left off against the Bulldogs. He scored the first Charger TD on a 69-yard option run in the first quarter to make it 6-0.

Two possessions later, the Chargers struck again. This time it was Bob Foust who rammed the ball across the line from one yard out, and Steve Bond fought the swirling winds to get the ball through the uprights for a PAT.

On the final Churchill score, it again was Stoitsiadis who set the pace. This time he picked off a Bentley pass while playing free safety on defense. He ten took over the signal calling duties, and handed the ball to Erwin Anderson-Smith, who went 11 yards to cap the Churchill scoring. Bond again was successful at kicking the ball in the right direction.

That made it 20-20 at the half, and the Churchill squad seemed content to rest on their laurels after that.

"The second half was all Bentley," admitted Kaestner. "We didn't do much of anything."

Bentley finally got the ball onto paydirt midway through the last quarter when Al Young went in on a one yard keeper, and Jeff Darke kicked the conversion for the vanquished.

The Chargers racked up 318 yards in total offense in the game, and Foust and Stoitsiadis were responsible for a large part of it. Foust did his part on the ground by going 121 yards on 14 carries, and Stoitsiadis also rushed for 107 yards on seven tries. Passing, he was four of 11 attempts for 48 yards and one touchdown.

All the Livonia teams will be playing within the city limits this week, and the Chargers drew the assignment of facing Livonia Stevenson for their 1983 finale.

"They are 6-2 coming in," said Kaestner, "so it will be a tough task for our squad. They have a fine quarterback, good receivers, and better running backs, so that makes it hard for us to defend. We will have to be successful with our passes to give them a run for their money."

Kaestner admitted that he would like nothing better than to end the year with another victory, but he also said that this season has already been a rewarding one for him.

"We have nothing to lose, really," said the coach. "If we win, then we go out with three straight. If we lose, then we spend all winter thinking sweet thoughts about the Harrison game."

The Charger final contest will be played at Stevenson, Friday night beginning at 7:30 p.m.

the middle of the Polar Bear line and blocked a Highland Park punt on their two-yard line.

"The defense line really played well. The entire unit played well. There was no area that didn't play well. When you play as big a line as Highland Park has, it is a credit to our defense to have shut them out," said Coach Gordon.

Five plays later, the Rockets were in the end zone again but not before they gave their loyal fans a scare when Hawley had to recover a loose ball at the 8-yard line. But no matter — it only served to let Genovese catch another pass at the two-yard line. The 5-10, 125-pound receiver caught three passes for 42 yards on the evening.

Thornton ran the ball twice and got it into the end zone on the second try at the 3:27 mark of the third period. Piazza's point-after put Glenn ahead, 14-0.

Again the Rocket defense took over and kept Blockett and his teammates bottled up for the most part. If it wasn't Strehl making a key tackle on Highland Park's fullback, Richard Branch (Jr., 5-11, 205), then it was Thornton recovering a fumble after a completed pass by Blockett to Lyman Depriest (6-2, 192).

Thornton and Corbeil combined for a pair of interceptions on the Polar Bears' last two scoring attempts in the final minutes of play to ice the victory and put them in a positive frame of mind for next week's neighborhood "tussle" with Wayne.

As for Wayne, Gordon said, "They are very talented, have good speed and Quartuccio is probably the best quarterback we've faced all season. Michael Jackson is a game-breaker. We'll have our hands full."

Dorsey captures 3 gold medals

Westland John Glenn dominated the 1983 Girls' Western Wayne Swimming & Diving Championships stages Friday and Saturday at Wayne Memorial High School.

Garnering five of 11 first places, including the 200-yard medley relay, the Westlanders picked up 300 points, 100 more than the second finishing Wayne Memorial team.

Wayne was second with 195, followed by Garden City (167), Allen Park and Riverview, each with 141, Wyandotte (78), Livonia Franklin (77) and Lincoln Park (71).

Garden City's Kim Dorsey walked away with three gold medals as she captured top honors in the 200-yard freestyle (2:01.4), touched in first in the 100-yard butterfly (1:03.7) and anchored her team's winning 400-yard freestyle relay team.

Westlander Debbie Roebel was clocked in 27 seconds flat in the winning 50-yard freestyle, while teammate Shelly Pilarski put the 100-yard freestyle event in the Rockets' column with a 60 seconds flat effort and Robin Gow turned in a 1:07.8 in winning the 100-yard backstroke.

Glen also claimed the gold for the 100-yard breaststroke thanks to Elana Drake who finished in 1:16.5.

Ten Pin TopicsLocal youth bowling league is really unique

By JIM WRUBLEWSKI
(ANP Special Writer)

Sunday, October 16th marked the opening day for a new league in this area. You may well be saying so what? Normally the start of a league creates little interest outside of the participating bowlers, but this particular league is being met with a bit more than passing curiosity, especially by anyone interested in the up-and-coming young bowler.

The new league is called the Western Wayne County Youth Traveling Classic and is composed of 10 teams of boys and girls who have met specific minimum average requirements.

Bowlers range in age from 12 to 19 years of age with the majority between 14 and 16 years old.

The term "classic" applies to these youngsters not only because of the averages they carry, but also the rules under which they operate, including dress codes and proper conduct on the lanes.

Another facet that adds class to this group is the travelling aspect. All of us realize scoring well is difficult enough when you bowl in the same house week after week. Well, these youngsters will be rolling in five different houses which should make things very interesting.

In the first week's action, Keith Simons led the boys with a 228 game; Joe Mamroctski was next with 211 and 561; Steve Grady hit 208; Nelson Kluska had 202; and 13-year-old Andy Gee hit an even 200 game and 560 series.

The girls proved that good bowling does run in a family as Kelly Hainley rolled a 211 game and her sister, Jodie, took top series honors with a 556 total.

Chris Winters was also among the top shooters with a 212 game and 530 total.

We also have some youngsters in our midst who have every reason to be proud of their bowling accomplishments. Christine LaFave, Dave Burgos, Joe Mamroctski, Steve Demarde, and Ken Gabrielson, bowling as a team in the youth leagues at Westland Bowl, (15 to 19 year old age group) rolled the 3rd highest 3-game total in the entire nation, a 3430 series. Congratulations are extended to these rising stars.

In regular action at Westland Bowl, Terry Smith flirted with perfection by throwing 9 in a row for a 277 game, then added 246 and 224 for a 737 series.

Mike Kane and Tim Gardella continued their impressive shooting as Mike hit 255 and 258 for 715 and Tim rolled 247 and 246 for 703. Tim Whalen had 234 and 253 for 703; Leandra Michalak led the ladies with 233 and 201 for 615; and Donna Baumia had 220 for 551.

Wayne Bowl's scoring had a 136 average, Barrie Lincourt, totalling 634; Rick Clack rolled 630; Tom Endresz hit 612; Dennis Burnheiser had a 244; and Ralph Battle a 230 game.

Lodge Lane's action was paced by Carl Harden with a 778 series on games of 236-277-265; Bill Roberts was next in line with a 750 total; Bob Goike senior had a 704; and Mike Denton finished with 692.

Senior citizen Don Beck had a 203 game and 537 total; John Fogliatti also hit 203 for 536; and Diane Schmidt hit an even 200 game.

In the youth category, Prep (12 to 15 years old) Scott

Janack hit 221-176-174; Teen (16 and up) Steve Berperault had 238 and 211 for 581; Tom Branion had a 548 total; Blaine Newlin a 528; Joan Adkins 240; and Bob Webb a 213 game.

SuperBowl scoring featured Ron Zalek totalling 723 on games of 214-243-266; Janet (Jake) Haas had a 256 game; 145 avg. Sue Grubb rolled a 233 game; Nancy Belinger 224 and 558; Judy Robertson 202; Bruce Nelson 616; and Jennifer Nowacki at a 104 average competing with the 9 to 11 year olds hit a 416 total.

At Fiesta Lanes, the senior citizens outdid themselves with a couple of award winners as well as several individual and team high scores.

The award winners were Del Petti, 148 pins over, with 222 for 595 and Bill Spooner, 136 pins over, on games of 219 and 209 for 583.

Rose Happner went 70 plus pins over average in one game with a 196 for 505; Harry Evans rolled a 214 for 570; Stan Truski hit a 202 and 572; Jim Clark 197 for 540; Ernie Sletcher 194 for 504; and Jim Waited had a 504 series.

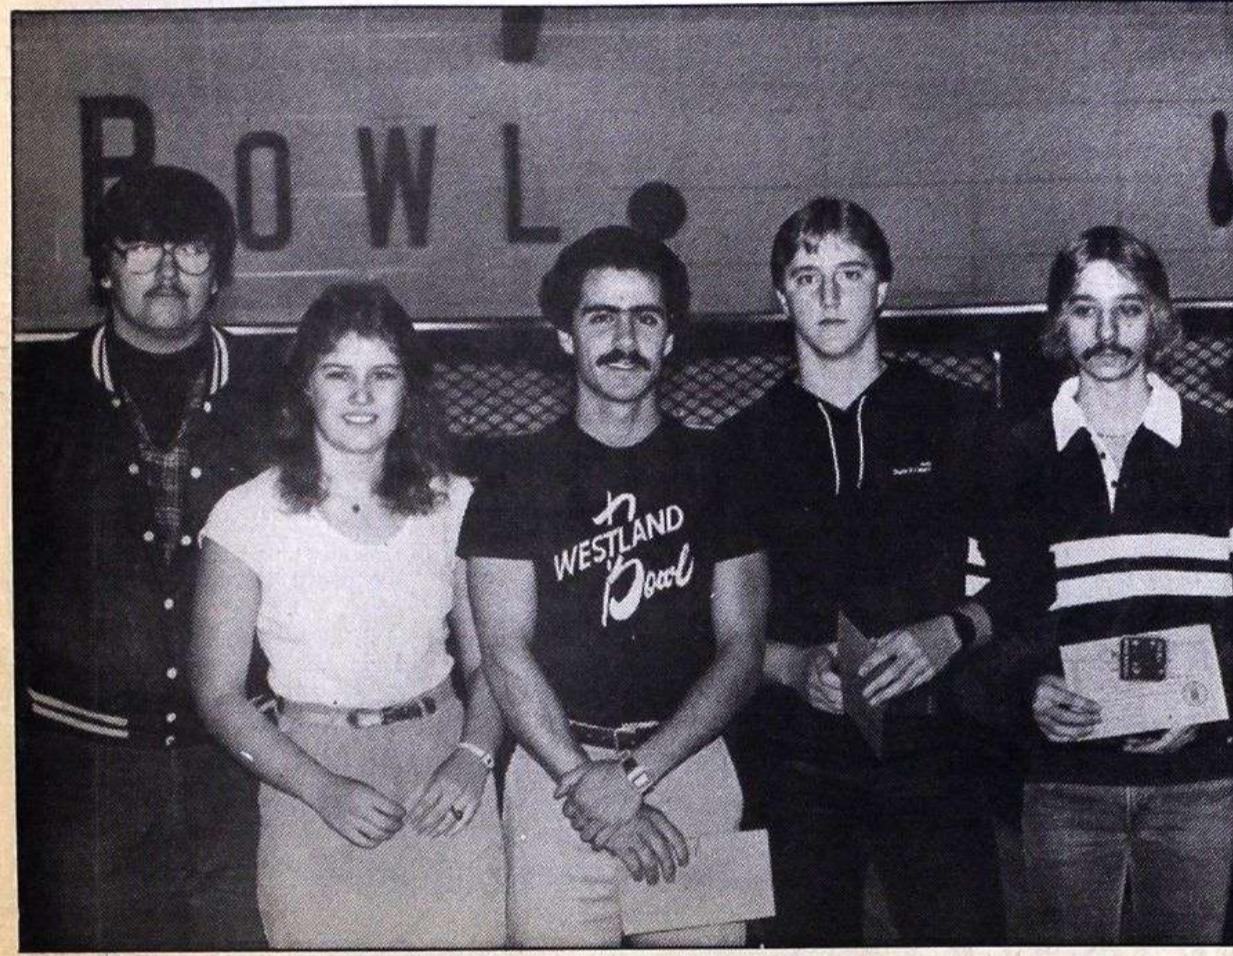

In the team category, the "Cabbage Heads" Chuck and Rose Happner and Stan and Mary Truski rolled a 724 game and 1995 series; the "Okra's" Jim Clark, Del Petti, Mary Lou Collyer and Edna Anderson tallied 1957; and the "Hot Pepper's" Dorothy Adams, Charles Celeste, and Joe and Helen Kubinec finished with a 1942 series.

Also at Fiesta Lanes the ladies kept their presence known as Ellen Hunter hit 229; Gail Melnik had a 208; and Teresa Zigman a 204 game.

The bowlers in the 150 average range set the pace at Town 'N' Country Lanes as Pam Wyzykowski, at a 152 average, rolled a 239 game; 158 average Kevin Morine hit a 268; Joan Nadeau (151 avg.) 230; Betty Burns (163 avg.) 222; Matt Porter (150 avg.) 266; and Cher Johnson (126 avg.) a 225 game.

Mike Lotito rolled a 727 total in the Westside Men's Traveling League on games of 247-212-268; Jim Daniels and Jim Mijal had both first names and 653 totals in common at their last outing; Dick "Oz" Kaczynski put together three deuces for 660; and John Richardson hit 235 and 233 for a 637 series in the Saturday Youth League at T 'C' lanes.

Third best in nation

Little did they realize when they put together a 3-game total of 3,430 pins, that the series would count as the third highest in the nation. So, last week, Dave Burgos, Christine LaFave, Joe Mamroctski, Steve Demarde and Ken Gabrielson, who bowl as a team out of Westland Bowl, were awarded certificates and pins to commemorate their accomplishment.

New Chuck Muer restaurant opens Saturday in Wayne

Nationally known restaurateur Chuck Muer will open the latest addition to his growing restaurant empire, "Mama & Pasta's," this Saturday at 3511 Michigan Ave. in downtown Wayne.

The new restaurant will specialize in homemade pasta served with a variety of freshly made sauces and chicken dishes. A limited number of beef and fish entrees supplement the menu.

The price range of dinner entrees is from $3.95 to $6.95. Children's dinners are priced at $2.95, with six entrees to select from a special menu designed for young guests 12 and under.

All adult dinner entrees are served with a house salad and Mama & Pasta's bread made fresh daily on premises. The hot homemade bread, choice of beverage and ice cream or sherbet are included in the price of the children's dinner.

Mama & Pasta's will be open for lunch Monday through Friday from 11 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Dinner will be served Monday through Thursday from 4 p.m. to 10 p.m.; Friday, 4 p.m. to 11 p.m.; Saturday from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. and Sunday from 3:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m.

"Mama & Pasta's offers something for most everyone," said General Manager Jeff Cole. "Our quality food is fresh and made on premises. The prices are affordable, and the decor pleasing. Even more important is our caring, friendly, personal service. We look forward to serving the neighborhood and being a part of the local community."

Pasta, the specialty of the restaurant, is made fresh on the premises, in full view of guests and is offered in a variety of fresh sauces. Among the entrees offered are linguine with a choice of Italian sausage or meat balls in a rich tomato sauce; linguine with garden-fresh vegetables and linguine with white or red clam sauce.

There will also be daily pasta specials offered, including such unique dishes as shrimp and artichoke pasta and Fettuccine Alfredo.

For those who enjoy a heartier meal, a combination is offered consisting of meatballs, Italian sausage and chicken on a bed of homemade pasta with a special sauce of tomato, wine and herbs.

Among the beef entrees available are charbroiled tenderloin medallions of beef on a bed of pasta and a New York strip steak.

Chicken dishes included in the Mama & Pasta's menu are chicken cacciatore, a breast of chicken simmered with mushrooms, onions, tomatoes and herbs and Julienne breast of chicken sauteed with fresh vegetables. Both chicken entrees are served with rice pilaf.

For the seafood love, the menu has fresh Boston Schrod served with fusilli noodles.

The lunch menu features homemade soups, garden fresh salads, burgers and sandwiches, homemade pasta and other entrees such as broiled fresh Boston Schrod, charbroiled teriyaki chicken and chicken primavera.

Hot issue explodes

Four years ago in Westland, an idea was conceived; an idea which held that it was not necessary for people to die in home fires when technology was available to prevent such tragedy.

At a HUD Planned Community in Woodlands, Texas, a company named Tocom, had received a contract to install residential fire detectors in homes, with the detectors connected to Fire Department Monitors via coaxial cable. It mattered little to Tocom that the piece of coaxial cable also delivered cable television services to Woodland's residents.

Because the Woodlands was a planned community, built from scratch and to exact specifications, it was a simple matter for government to require that each home built contain a $450 Tocom police/fire monitoring system. There was no problem overcoming citizen objection regarding this requirement, after all, if a potential purchaser did not wish to accept the community's residential specifications, he or she could locate elsewhere.

It was the Woodlands which provided Westland Mayor Tom Taylor the idea of combining a municipal cable system with a municipal fire and police detection system.

Beginning in 1979, Taylor labored over the development of a workable idea to create such a system for his community. For nearly 18 months, Taylor studied cable television and its related interactive capabilities, finally putting together his plan that was quickly supported by nearly everyone who understood it.

But, unfortunately, not everyone understood ... and a few chose to misrepresent the plan for political benefit.

Taylor's original plan consisted of building a sophisticated 40-plus channel cable television system financed through a creative lease/buy-back formula which would have included a duplicate of the Woodlands' Tocom police and fire monitoring system in each Westland home.

Taylor reasoned that if his police and fire monitoring system were not a requirement of the plan, not enough residents would be willing to spend the $450 necessary to buy the "home terminal," thereby effectively eliminating the city-wide fire protection he had hoped to provide citizens.

To ease the "pain" of having to spend this amount of money to equip a home, Taylor's plan specified that the home terminal installation would only be required following the sale of the property.

In addition, Taylor proposed that the city would assist homeowners with the purchase of the equipment by billing them over three years via their water bills. Eventually, Taylor said he hoped that he would be able to attract a Federal or State grant to purchase and install the equipment.

While there was substantial support for the plan among those knowledgeable within the community, some residents vocally expressed dislike for any requirement that they install $450 worth of electronics in their home. Taylor later withdrew the portion of his plan which would have made the home terminals a (See CABLE, Page B-5)

RODNEY DANGERFIELD
"Rappin' Rodney"
(RCA)

Rodney Dangerfield's second album carries on in the fine tradition and standards set with his long overdue "No Respect" LP of two years ago. Which means that it's one of the best comedy records around, with jokes hitting one right after the other, not even resting enough for the listener to catch his breath.

"My old man, he was a beauty. He was a workaholic...if someone mentioned work, he'd start drinking."

The nearly 40 minutes of stand-up comedy is only interrupted for the rap number by Rodney and his girls, titled appropriately enough, "Rappin' Rodney." While the musical number is OK, it tends to wear thin after the first listen, something that the comedy segments don't do, strangely enough.

"My wife...when we got married, she told me I was one in a million — I found out later she was right!"

Along with Robin Williams and Richard Pryor, Dangerfield is one of America's foremost comedians, and since his humor is less "blue" than the others, he's more accessible than the others. Why, I'll bet when "Rappin' Rodney" gets to MTV later this month, I'll even hail it as the best comedy video since Crazy Al's "Ricky." Of course, with a puss like Rodney's, it'd be awful hard not to laugh. No respect indeed...

"When I was born the doctor told my mother I did all I could, but he pulled through anyway!"

requirement. But his problems didn't end.

One Westland city councilman, politically opposed to Taylor, eventually managed to shape the plan to end Westland fire-related deaths, into an effective political football, pitting the uninformed and misled against municipal cable.

To the cable industry's credit, only two companies chose to publicly attack the concept of municipal cable for Westland. And while it was widely alleged that those companies helped finance a campaign against Taylor's plan, those allegations appear to have been unfounded. (Neither of those two companies are presently involved in Westland cable deliberations).

And while the forces of ignorance and political expediency mounted their final attack, the U.S. Fire Administration endorsed the Westland plan and provided two grants for continued study.

Marjory Gantz, the installation of new officers at Thomas F. Elderly Housing Taylor Towers in Corp. will preside at Westland.

'Jinx strikes again'

Romulus travels to Robichaud after loss to Thurston on home turf

Thurston made sure Friday night that host Romulus wouldn't win on the home turf this season. Perpetuating a "jinx" that has now extended three seasons, the Redford Township gridders struck for a first quarter touchdown to hand Coach Norb Glover and the Eagles' their sixth consecutive setback of the 1983 campaign.

Romulus also has yet to post a victory under the lights on its home field. The Eagles switched from the high school to the North Junior High facility, which has lights, in order to play night games.

And, if Glover and his charges wish to end their losing streak and wind up the season on a winning note they will have to do it Friday night at the expense of a strong Dearborn Heights

Robichaud team. Robichaud, the undisputed Suburban Athletic Conference champ, is eyeing a Class B state playoff berth and "won't fool around with the Eagles," a Class A team.

"We expect them to come after us as if this was a championship game," Glover pointed out. "They need the 80 points (for a victory over a Class A team), so we better be prepared to play."

Thurston was probably Romulus' last realistic chance to win in 1983. The Redford team also had won one previous game prior to the 8-0 triumph Friday night over Romulus.

"We didn't play well against them (Thurston), moaned Glover. "We're going to have to go back to the drawing boards and see if we can patch up some of the holes and finish this year the best we can."

Romulus marched into the Thurston confrontation without their premier linesman, Shawn Perkins. (There had been a death in the Perkins' family). Glover switched Ron Downey to the nose guard slot and Downey did a commendable job.

But it was the offense that sputtered throughout the evening. Although the Eagles maneuvered inside the Thurston 15-yard line on three separate occasions, they never came up with a TD play.

Darrin Grandison, who has led the Eagle attack most of the season, came up with 109 yards on 13 attempts.

Pioneer stops Romulus cagers, 56-49

State-ranked Ann Arbor Pioneer invaded Romulus last week and managed to wrestle a hard-fought 56-49 victory over Coach Ron Bayes's girls' basketball team.

"The first time around this team (Pioneer) had beaten us by 20 points," Bayes pointed out.

"This time they had to struggle. I know that our kids felt they have improved greatly since the beginning of the year, and that they now can play with the best of them."

The loss and a subsequent victory over Essex provided the Eagles with an 11-5 over-all record.

Colleen scored 15 points, her cord on the season.

The McKay sisters, Colleen and Donna, along with Yogi Smith's defense antics, kept Pioneer in check most of the game. Pioneer eked out a 25-20 first half lead before going on to defeat the home town girls.

Colleen scored 15 points, her team's high, while Donna tossed in 11 points. Smith also contributed 10 points, but held high-scoring Pioneer forward Crystal Westfield to only 10.

Donna McKay sank 17 points and Colleen added 15 at Romulus humbled Essex 53-36.

Gundella and Great Pumpkin fascinate kids

When the Wick P.T.A. invited Gundella, the witch to come to school, they did not know about the visitor she brought with her.

Gundella arrived on the Thursday before Halloween to help the children celebrate the holiday.

She is well-known in the Detroit area by everyone who knows anything at all about witches. Gundella represents the green witch family, the more congenial pack of witches. There is also a coven of blue and one of red according to Gundella.

Her storytelling thrilled and chilled students and still kept them laughing. Though she told a most interesting story, Gundella's greatest success came when she taught the children a song which caused the Great Pumpkin to appear.

Gundella enjoys performing at schools more than anywhere else. She taught school for 22 years and believes kids haven't changed a bit. Gundella's last thought before leaving was to wish Romulus all of the good things that happen when everyone works closely together.

The students ended their day with treats furnished by the P.T.A.

Halecreek's Haunted House a Hit

A new tradition has begun at Halecreek where parents assured a safe holiday for their youngsters by hosting a party Halloween evening instead of taking them out for 'trick or treats'.

On this occasion, the music room became a haunted house and parents became ghouls and ghosts.

Each classroom was transformed into a house and children went from door to door trick or treating until their bags were full.

Candy and other goodies were donated by parents and local businesses.

A game room welcomed the students when they had completed their rounds. The tradition of bobbing for apples was changed by hanging them on a string from the ceiling and spearing them without using their hands.

The appearance of the "Headless Horseman" was a gruesome sight, but one which no one wanted to miss.

Art work was created by parents Cheryl Herron, Sandra Hall, Cindy Bennett, Gloria Richardson, Gail Howard and Lorraine Wilkerson. There were about 45 parent volunteers to help the students on their tour of the school.

While parents cleaned up after the party, another parent, Ron Swanson braved the night to take the volunteers' children on a hayride around the school area.

Huron High hosts an 'Open House'

Natalie Vass, a 17-year-old senior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Vass of 25370 Bell Road in New Boston was selected the 1983 Homecoming Queen of Huron High School.

Miss Vass was elected by the student body and was crowned during half-time activities of the football game with Gibraltar Carlson on October 21. Trina Daniels, the reigning 1982 Homecoming Queen, crowned the new queen and the first runnerup, Rita Vitale. Other members of the Queen's Court included Cheryl Greca, Claudia Hagedorn and Chris McLeod.

The Homecoming Dance was held October 22 in the Huron High School gymnasium and the occasion was well attended by Huron students. The formal affair is one of the social highlights of the school year.

Huron High School had its first "Open House" in many years on Oct. 26 from 7-9 p.m.

Approximately 40 parents attended. The activities included abbreviated 15 minute classes in which the parents would follow their respective students' academic schedule. Refreshments consisted of cider and doughnuts.

Good Shepherd Celebrates Halloween

A Halloween costume party and cookout Sunday evening climaxed the week's activities at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church's Pumpkin Festival at 8335 Textile Road.

Pumpkins were distributed free of charge to children from Monday through Thursday. Judging of the decorated pumpkins took place on Saturday morning along with a baked goods and crafts sale.

Choosing the winning pumpkin entries were Belleville Mayor

Corwin Laster placed first in the 11 to 13 year old group, followed by Larry Scurlock, second, and Brian Scurlock, third.

Lawrence McDonald captured first prize in the 14 to 16 year old age group. Monique Scurlock was second and Jill Eaton, third.

Belleville retailers at hardware conference

Jim Amerman, president of Amerman Lumber and Supply Company in Belleville, and his son, James II (Jamie) who is a salesman for the business, participated in a College of Hardware and Home Center Knowledge in Kent, Ohio on September 28 and 29. The conference, sponsored by the National Retail Hardware Association, was designed to instruct the owners, managers and key employees of retail hardware stores and home centers in ways to increase their store's sales and profits. Both gentlemen attended seminar sessions on Selling Plumbing and Selling Electrical Supplies to the Do-It-Yourself Customer.

The senior Amerman has been with the business for 29 years and president for the past 10. A graduate of the University of Michigan, he is a member of the Belleville-Van Buren Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Directors of Progressive Affiliated Lumbermen's Co-op, Inc. He and his wife, Sylvia, also have two daughters - Susan and Noelle.

Jamie Amerman has been a salesman for five of the seven years he has been with the business. In the past year, he was instrumental in the rearrangement of the store in order to better serve customers.

Edison seeks customers for surcharge refunds

Detroit Edison announced today the beginning of an extensive advertising campaign to locate former electric customers of the company eligible for a refund of deferred fuel expense surcharges billed during the period October 1976 through September 1977 and in January 1978.

Ads will appear in newspapers throughout Michigan, in selected metropolitan areas and in popular retirement communities throughout the country.

Most eligible Detroit Edison customers already have received the refund plus interest in the form of a credit on their October 1983 electric bills or a refund check.

If a customer of the company during the specified periods has not received either the credit or a refund check, then Detroit Edison is asking that they send an application.

The application will be part of the newspaper advertisement that can be clipped off. Applications also can be obtained at any Detroit Edison customer office, by calling the telephone number on your Detroit Edison electric bill or by writing Detroit Edison, P.O. Box 33048, Detroit 48232.

The refund is the result of a seven-year court case involving deferred fuel costs the company, with Ingham County Circuit Court approval, charged to its customers during the 13 months involved.

In May of this year, the Michigan Supreme Court refused to review a 1978 Appeals Court ruling which reversed the Circuit Court decision.

The Michigan Public Service Commission has directed that the $23.5 million involved be refunded, with interest, to the customers who paid the surcharge.

The refund will total about $47.5 million, or slightly more than $10.00 for the average Detroit Edison residential customer.

Proposed law to create jobs?

State Senator Patrick H. McCollough, Chairman of the Senate Health and Social Services Committee, recently introduced legislation that will enable the Department of Social Services to subsidize, on a client by client basis, employers willing to hire and train General Assistance welfare recipients.

The goal of the bill (SB 456) is to encourage private employers and nonprofit agencies to consider hiring General Assistance recipients when expanding and/or developing new positions," said McCollough.

"As the State of Michigan continues its search for innovative approaches to developing new cooperative relationships with business that benefit both the employer and the citizens of Michigan, this is exactly the type of legislation we should be considering.

"Everyone wins if this legislation becomes law," McCollough said.

Used car rental concept

'Rent-A-Wreck' at airport

"Look out Hertz and Avis — RENT-A-WRECK has come to Detroit Metro Airport!"

Offering used cars 2 to 8 years old at rental prices less than one-half of what the "major" companies charge, RENT-A-WRECK opened here today at 10255 Middlebelt Road.

The RENT-A-WRECK outlet is owned and operated by Oscar H. Rhoton Jr., a 13 year veteran in the automotive business in the Detroit area.

RENT-A-WRECK and the used car rental concept were originated in 1970 in Los Angeles by Dave Schwartz. Today RENT-A-WRECK is the nation's fastest growing auto rental company with more than 250 locations . . . from Alaska to Florida . . . Hawaii to New England . . . Australia . . . and now Detroit Metro Airport.

RENT-A-WRECK is a catchy name known all over the world, but it's really a serious business," says Rhoton. "There are literally thousands of Detroit area residents who simply are unable to or unwilling to pay the high cost of new car rentals.

Dave Schwartz and other RENT-A-WRECK operators throughout the United States have proven that the average American is perfectly willing to rent a clean well-maintained used car, especially if it means paying half of the new car rental rate. Here at Detroit Metro Airport, a RENT-A-WRECK customer can save as much as $30 a day.

According to Rhoton, the premise behind RENT-A-WRECK is simple. "Everybody drives a used car at home, so when you need to rent a car, why not rent a used one? As a matter of fact," he says, "the cars you rent from the 'majors' are used — ours are just a little older but wiser. They may not win any beauty contests, but they're clean, well-maintained, and they run great. We take a lot of pride in the quality of our cars."

Rhoton says RENT-A-WRECK is interested in providing dependable transportation to its customers, with special attention to safety. "At RENT-A-WRECK," he explains, "the brakes, tires, steering, and all other mechanical aspects of the cars are always in first-rate operating order."

According to Rhoton, prices for rent-A-WRECK cars here will be from $16.95 per day and $105 per week.

"RENT-A-WRECK really provides a savings," says Rhoton, "especially for the person whose car is in the shop, or who is between cars, or needs a car for a week, a month or even six months. For these folks," he adds "we fill a void between the daily rental alternative and long term lease."

RENT-A-WRECK's hours of operation here are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 9 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturday. The local number is 946-9560. In addition, RENT-A-WRECK has a national, toll-free number for reservation information: (800) 421-7253.

Inflation is catalyst for high mortgage rates

The resurgence in the housing market evident through much of 1983 may be slipping away with decline continuing through the next two years, according to the Metro MLS, multiple listing arm of the Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors.

"We tend to agree with our national economist that decline in the inflation rate has about bottomed out," said Thomas A. Duke, Jr., Metro MLS president. "It now looks like it may climb back to the six percent level by year's end and edge even higher through 1985."

"With mortgage interest rates closely tied to the rate of inflation, we don't expect they will vary much from present levels and may even show a slight increase which doesn't bode well for an improved market for homes. Despite the decline in inflation we have enjoyed in recent months, real interest rates, those adjusted for inflation, have remained considerably higher than in the previous era."

"High federal budget deficits and accelerating inflation will keep upward pressure on mortgage rates which, even in the 13-14 percent range, severely limit the number of buyers who can move into the home market."

Duke said buyers would find that existing home prices are not increasing rapidly, however, and nationally should not climb more than 3.8 percent through all of 1983, edging up to a five percent rate the following year.

Realtors are forecasting that existing home sales nationally at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.85 million in the third quarter, will decline to 2.63 million units next year and to 2.5 million units in 1985.

"The best hope for a more favorable market will come from continuing economic recovery that will help reduce federal deficits or some government action that will significantly reduce federal spending," Duke said.

Through the first eight months this year, home sales by Metro MLS members had shown a 57 percent gain over 1982.

Drunk driving Don't do it in Canton

By ROSE MARY REIZ
ANP Staff Writer

Police department officials don't think they can put an end to drunk driving, but they are hopeful that increased road patrols will send those who drink and drive beyond the Canton Township border.

"Word gets around among drivers," Canton Township Police Chief Jerry Cox said. "People who have been stopped for drunk driving in this township in the past have admitted that they were purposely trying to drive around, not through, Canton."

It's an image Cox and other police chiefs would like to see return to their communities. Federal funding from the state Office of Highway Traffic and Safety for a special road patrol force to begin in November may help.

The Wayne County Chiefs of Police applied for funding for increased traffic enforcement in June. "We decided collectively that we needed to do more in this area," Cox said. "Penalties for drunk driving have increased, and we needed to enhance our enforcement as well."

"Approximately $37,000 of the $400,000 appropriation county-wide is earmarked for our area," Cox explained. "The money will be used to pay overtime costs for officers patrolling high-accident areas in Canton Township, Northville, Northville Township, Plymouth and Plymouth Township."

There will be special patrol officers in addition to the township regular road patrol. Although the additional officers will assist in other areas if needed, drunk drivers will be their main target. Patrol locations and times will be assigned based on a study of high-incident areas.

"Because officers from participating communities will be deputized and working through the 35th District Court, a drunk driver could theoretically be stopped in Canton by a Northville car," Cox explained. "Depending on accident frequency, all patrolling officers could sometimes be assigned to saturate one area in one community."

"The program will last as long as the money lasts," Cox said. "We hope to be patrolling a few evenings a week for the next year."

According to the chief, the drunk driving problem reflects economic conditions of society that present a no-win situation to law enforcement officials.

"When times are rough, many people use alcohol to try to deal with problems," he said. "An economic upswing can also result in more drinking, and in more people out on the road."

Locally, the problem has reached alarming proportions. "Nine of Canton's 12 traffic fatalities this year were alcohol-related," Cox said. "By 1 a.m., eight of every 10 drivers have had at least one drink."

Romulus students look at SPACE

Activities such as typing, working with charts and graphs, programming a computer, and using techniques for problem solving usually are found in a business office or scientific laboratory.

However, these and other tasks are all part of the day for Romulus students in SPACE.

SPACE (Special Program for Academic and Creative Enrichment) provides a unique opportunity for some of the potentially gifted children in Romulus.

Participating students travel to Merriman Elementary School on their designated day each week to learn about the social studies, math, science, reading and language arts through a wide range of tools.

These include an Apple II+ computer, typewriters, calculators, and other tools not normally found in the elementary classroom.

Students will help design their own program of study under the direction of Jean Weiler, teacher. Mrs. Weiler creates an individually written study plan for each student with the help of the student and his or her parents.

The planned activities are designed to develop self-initiative, critical thinking and divergent and convergent thinking skills.

Mrs. Weiler monitors students' movements closely and prepares an evaluation several times a year to reflect how the student is developing.

There is a total of 64 students, 37 of them new to the program in its second year of existence. Most of the new students are fourth graders, the level of entry into SPACE. Each day's class has 16 students who are transported to Merriman by their parents.

Mrs. Weiler solicits the input of parents continuously and surveys students, parents and teachers to gain insight on how to improve the program.

Excitement is already being generated about a science fair planned for later this year.

Students have little to complain about (the worst thing is having the last lunch hour!) but much to be enthusiastic about. Their comments of It's fun! There's lots and lots to do! reflect their enjoyment of the learning experience.

Parents too feel the program is a valuable one for their child to participate in. One parent stated I'm thrilled that my child has this opportunity to supplement and enrich her curricula. Another parent is impressed with how many different areas the student can study.

Christmas tree sought

It isn't too early to be thinking of Christmas as members of the Wayne Beautification Committee have discovered.

Making plans for the annual holiday decorations, the group is searching for a live

evergreen, 20 to 25

feet in height, to be used as the official city tree this year.

Resolution 83-424

WHEREAS, the City of Romulus has received a resolution from the City of Trenton in reference to the Detroit Edison's impending 968 Million Dollar rate increase before the Michigan Public Service Commission, and

WHEREAS, the alleged justification for said rate increase is the introduction of two generating plants into the rate base, namely Belle River and Fermi II, and

WHEREAS, the proposed rate increase severely affects the City of Romulus directly in its streetlighting and traffic lights, and

WHEREAS, the proposed rate would severely impair the residential user as well,

WHEREAS, the City Council for the City of Romulus is opposed to Detroit Edison's large proposed rate increase in that it penalizes the consumer for Detroit Edison's cost overruns and misjudgments, and

WHEREAS, the proposed rate increase fails to take into account the ability of the average consumer to pay for the rate increases, especially in a depressed economy, such as exists in Southeastern Michigan.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, that the City Council for the City of Romulus opposes Detroit Edison's proposed rate increase for the reasons stated in this Resolution.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Michigan Public Service Commission and to the Office of the Attorney General.

WAYNE'S PROGRESS DEPENDS ON YOUR VOTE — VOTE TO ELECT

DAVE KUBITSKI
WAYNE CITY COUNCIL

Dear Citizen -

I would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself. My name is David Kubitski and I am seeking your vote in the November Election for the City Council. I'm a life-long resident for 31 years in this city as well as a businessman here. I have been married to Susan Kubitski for 10 years and have two children, Leonard and Rachel.

I believe the issues in this election are (1) the paying of higher taxes, and cut back of services previously afforded the citizens of Wayne, (2) a more strenuous effort should be made in the development of our downtown business community, and (3) the lack of recreational activities for our citizens.

In my business, as owner of the Second St. Market, I sponsor youth athletic programs such as baseball and hockey, as well as allow my store to be used as a distribution center for surplus food for the needy and unemployed.

It is not my intent to dwell on the negative things that have happened in the past, but to accent the positive and to forge ahead and to implement positive programs for the betterment of our community.

With your support, we can make Wayne a better community in which to live.

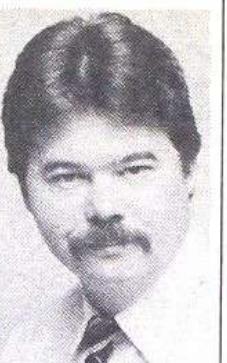

Yours Very Truly,

Daniel Kubitski

Wayne candidates seeking the three four-year terms and one two year term were interviewed by Associated Newspapers and asked two questions regarding their candidacy.

Thomas Weyand

Why do you feel qualified to fill the position you seek?

Jerry Boroff

Employed as a machine setter at the Ford Motor Co. Transmission Plant in Livonia, Boroff resides at 32436 Woodbrook Drive. He was unsuccessful in a bid for a seat on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners in 1982 and has never been elected to a public office. He and his wife, Ann, are the parents of six children. Boroff, 48, is a Wayne High School graduate and member of UAW Local 182.

Albert Damitio

A member of the city's Planning Commission and Compensation Commission, Damitio is active in several local organizations, including the Wayne Jaycees, Wayne Civitans, St. Mary's Parish Council and Administration Commission and the Society of Automotive Engineers. Damitio, 33, is a supervisor in engineering design and development for the Chrysler Corp. and has earned bachelor and masters degrees in mechanical engineering. He and his wife, Susan Kay, reside at 3333 John Hix with their three children.

Clifford Johnson

The president of the Metro Wayne Democratic Club, Johnson was honored by the State Legislature in 1981 for his community service involvement in programs for the needy and unemployed. Johnson, 56, was unsuccessful in his bid for a seat on the Wayne-Westland Board of Education in 1977. He has served as vice-chairperson for the 15th District Democratic Party; a precinct delegate; a member of the Wayne Board of Canvassers, and the Citizens Advisory Committee for Wayne County Community College. A pipefitter at Green Mechanical, Johnson and his wife, Marie Elizabeth, have four children and reside at 4107 Eastlawn.

Thomas Kelly

Appointed to replace County Commissioner Milt Mack on the City Council last January, Kelly is employed as the school librarian at John Glenn High School. A native of New York, he has served as a member of the Notre Dame Council-K of C, Wayne-Westland Education Association, Metro Wayne Democratic Club, St. Mary's Administration Committee and the American Federation of Teachers. Kelly, 48, earned bachelor and masters degrees in library science and served in Korea with the U.S. Air Force. He and his wife, Bridget, are the parents of four children and reside at 4345 Chamberlain.

David Kubitski

A lifelong Wayne resident and graduate of Wayne Memorial High School, he is the owner of the Second Street Market. Kubitski, 31, was unsuccessful in his bid for a city council seat in 1981. He serves as an auxiliary police officer and is active in various organizations, including Wayne youth hockey, Wayne's baseball program (coach), Wayne Jaycees and Wayne Chamber of Commerce. He and his wife, Sue, are the parents of two children and reside at 4393 Venoy.

Edwin Rowe

The owner of Rowe Electric in Wayne, which celebrated its 10th anniversary this year, he is a retiree of Detroit Edison and also serves as vice-president of the American Hotel Salvage Company in Wayne. Rowe, 47, is an original member of the Wayne Homecoming Festival Commission and is president of the Westwick Square Townhouses board of directors. Other memberships include the Wayne Jaycees, Civitans and the Wayne Electrical Examining Board. His son and daughter are employees of Rowe Electric.

What are your qualifications for the position of City Councilman?

Boroff — "As an hourly worker all my life and a member of the public segment that pays the highest percent of taxes, I will speak for the majority of the people in Wayne. I believe the voters should be given the opportunity to vote for a working man who is sensitive to peoples' needs."

Damitio — "I have extensive training in leadership and management and I know about city government from working on the Planning Commission and Festival Commission. My family and I enjoy living in Wayne and I want to maintain and improve the quality of life in Wayne. I'm experienced in working with people, in finances and in practical community government."

Johnson — "I am the most active candidate running and I have experience in public relations. I also have the knowledge in getting state and federal monies when available. People look upon me throughout Wayne County and the state as a leader. I am not afraid to make a decision."

Kelly — "I've been a member of the Wayne City Council for over 10 months and in that time I believe I have learned a great deal about municipal government. Now it's time to put my education and talents to work even harder to keep Wayne in a stable but solid position while looking toward future improvements."

Kubitski — "I have lived here for 31 years and I have a sensitivity to people. I have been through a lot of changes in the city and I want to represent the people of Wayne, to better this city for all of you."

Rowe — "Our city motto is 'People, Pride & Progress' and I feel I can represent that motto well. I have experience as a businessman and can communicate well in working with others. That is important because four votes are needed for any project...one individual can do nothing."

Weyand — "Obviously holding the present office has given (me) on-the-job training that cannot be obtained in any other fashion. The background of engineering has given me the opportunity to study various political problems in a thorough and timely fashion."

Does the City of Wayne need a new court facility?

Boroff — "Judge Seiler has been treated as a second class citizen, not being paid what he's worth. The court facility is a disgrace."

Damitio — "We need a courthouse with the proper amount of space. I don't believe that has to be a brand new building, but the present location is inadequate."

Johnson — "We definitely need a new courthouse. We're the laughing stock of Wayne County with our current facility."

Kelly — "Our court is very small. We should start new with a new location."

Kubitski — "It's in bad shape and the judge is dissatisfied. I feel we need to make a change."

Rowe — "Yes, we need a new court facility. It's an issue that must be considered in the near future."

Weyand — "We need a better court but it's a question of priorities."

Westland candidates are seeking four expiring terms on the city council. Each was interviewed by Associated Newspapers regarding their candidacy and goals.

Thomas C. Artley

A computer systems analyst with the Ford Motor Company, Artley has served on the city council since his appointment to that body in December 1976. A 17-year resident of the Westland community, he is affiliated with the Westland Host Lions Club and has been a member of the Westland Jaycees, Westland Hockey Association and Dad's Club of the Westland Youth Athletic Association. Married and the father of five children, he holds a bachelor of business administration degree from the University of Michigan. Artley, 45, also attended the University of Michigan-Dearborn and Lake Superior State College. He currently serves as city council president

Harry E. Conner

Presently a member of the city's planning commission, Conner is making his first bid for elective office in the city. Chairman of the Hawthorne Valley Citizens Committee Inc., he attended Schoolcraft Community College and is working on a bachelor of science degree in architecture at Lawrence Institute of Technology. Currently employed by Michigan Wisconsin Pipeline Co., Conner is a member of Masonic Lodge #574, F & A M, Founders Society of the Detroit Institute of Arts, associate member of the American Institute of Architects and the American Institute of Interior Designers. Married and the father of two children, he is a 12-year resident of the community.

A six-year resident of Westland, Daniels is seeking her first term in office. A graduate of Monroe High School, she has pursued extension courses through Eastern Michigan University and presently works as office manager for Contemporary Structures Inc. of Romulus. Married, she is the mother of three children.

WHY DO YOU FEEL
YOU ARE QUALIFIED TO FILL THE POSITION
YOU SEEK?

"My background in working with, and being involved in, youth groups gives me a full understanding of their needs, and I am fully aware of the basic services which our senior citizens require and will continue to take the lead in providing these groups with their basic needs. My background in civic affairs, as well as seven years on the city council have given me a complete exposure to the continuing needs of all sectors of the community."

For the last several years I have been directly involved in working with management, government, labor and the general public. I have managed to work well with all these various groups. In my employment as an architectural planner I have been involved in building projects from its ideal, its development and finally to its conclusion. Most recently as a Westland planning commissioner, I have been able to use my experiences in building, developing, designing and zoning to research issues before me.

"I have lived in six states and one foreign country and held jobs in four of these states. I was involved in the communities where I lived. My children played in local league. I was a Den Mother and Den Leader Coach for the Boy Scouts of America, and I have done work with the Heart Fund, Red Cross and Muscular Dystrophy. I am employed by a design and build engineering company. With that background I can deal with organizations, businesses, and charities. I can read a blueprint, understand specifications and contracts, and I know union forms and regulations, and I know what goes into negotiated contracts."

HOW WOULD YOU ELIMINATE THE FRICTION BETWEEN THE MAYOR AND CITY COUNCIL?

The only way I can see to solve it is a positive attitude on the part of the mayor to communicate with the council. We have definite communication between the council and the (department) directors, but there is very little between the council and the mayor. I really think we could bridge the gap, but the mayor doesn't want any input. Compromise isn't in his vocabulary. The council isn't saying his has to do it this way, but maybe he could accept our input, accept our experiences. If all four incumbents are returned to office, it will be a message to him that there are seven other elected officials in this city."

"I believe the most important part is to show respect for one another. A lot that has happened at council meetings should have been discussed between council members in study sessions before they got before the public. The mayor has to listen to what the council has to say, that's a positive to me. There also has to be a feeling of respect for each other. They keep saying there is no communications, and we've reached the point where there is no communication. Communication has to exist, and it's not there on either side."

I consider myself a reasonable person and given half a chance can work with anyone. I believe the mayor is an honest and honorable person, who has made some mistakes and been accused of some mistakes that have been blown out of proportion. I believe we have to have a better balance on the council, independent people who can work out their differences separate from city government."

WHAT DO YOU HOPE TO ACCOMPLISH AS A CITY COUNCILMAN?

Even if not elected, I plan to get the cable TV contract negotiated and completed this year, with construction to start this spring. I'd also like to talk to all the unions, especially 1602, for the use of volunteers to maintain things like the parks and ball diamonds. I'd like to tap those resources not to take work away from city employees, rather to allow people to use the parks to their fullest extent. I'd like to see a long-term financial plan for the city that will provide the fiscal integrity we don't have now. I'd also like to see additional funding for economic development to provide the resources to attract business and provide a stable tax base. We have the opportunity to make a jump on other communities because of the industrial parks that we have."

"I'd like to see more and better commercial and industrial development in the city. We have four industrial parks in the city, and I don't see why they're not developing considering I-275 and our rail facilities. I don't agree with the large tax abatements; I think the city should come up with other fringes to attract business. I'm a firm believer that citizens young and old should play a part in their city. It means something when citizens receive something from the legislative branch. It makes people aware and if they're aware, they got involved in their city. People who get involved develop a respect for their city."

"Working outside the city with an independent contractor, I am aware of the feeling of mistrust for the city. Businesses shy away from coming into Westland because of the political climate. Once you get a bad reputation outside a city, it's hard to bring in development. We have to survive and to do so we have to get rid of the conflict. That's primarily what I hope to accomplish. I hope to make, in my small way, Westland a better place to live. That's where my home is, that's where my investment is. My candidacy is so that we can have reasonable compromise with dignity."

Westland

Ben DeHart

A 40-year resident of the Westland Community, DeHart is seeking his second full term on city council. Married and the father of our children, he is active in the Democratic Party, having served on the State Central Committee, as co-vice chairman of the 15th District Organization, on the League of Westland Democratic Voters, Westland Young Democratic Club and Westland Democratic Precinct Delegate Organization. A graduate of Wayne State University, he also has been active in the AFL-CIO, Boy Scouts of America, Michigan United Conservation Club and Western Wayne County Conservation Club. DeHart served on the city's planning commission prior to his election to city council in 1979.

Richard "Rick" Grajek

A lifelong resident of the Westland community, Grajek is making his first bid for elective office. A retired fire fighter, he has been active in the Lions Club, Westland Democratic Club, Wayne-Ford Civic League, Marine Corps League, Goodfellows, International Firefighters Union, Michigan State Firefighters and State AFL-CIO. Married and the father of two children, he is a veteran of the U.S. Marine Corps, having served in the Korean War. Grajek is a recipient of the Mayor's Accommodation Award for lifesaving.

A. Kent Herbert

A graduate of Michigan State University with a bachelor of arts degree in financial administration, Herbert is seeking his first term in office after being appointed to the city council in January of this year. The city's former grants director, budget director and finance director-treasurer, he has served on the Municipal Services Bureau, the Elderly Housing Corporation and Economic Development Commission, as well as the city's summer festival committee. A 25-year resident of the community, Herbert is employed as vice president-controller with Baseline Inc. He is married and the father of three children.

Henry "Hank" Johnson

A manager of the Contract Compliance Department for Chrysler Corporation, Johnson, 32, is a graduate of Wayne County Community College and has studied at the University of Michigan-Dearborn. He has served on the Norwayne Task Force, chairman and member of the city's Civil Service Commission and a volunteer with the city's summer festival. He has been active on the Parish Council of Sts. Simon and Jude Church, and is affiliated with the University of Michigan Alumni Association, Political Science Internship Alumni Association and Management Club of Chrysler Corporation. Single, he is making his second bid for elective office in the city.

Robert D. Wagner

Presently, the longest serving member of city council, Wagner is employed by the Ford Motor Company as an audio-visual show director. A 37-year resident of the community, he has been active in the Jaycees, Wayne-Westland Civic Theatre, Moose, Civil Air Patrol and VFW. He presently serves as the city representative to the Board of Directors of the Peoples Community Hospital Authority. He has been a recipient of the Michigan Jaycees' Award for Outstanding Service to the Community, four silver and one gold Ford Motor Company Good Citizen Awards and a plaque of appreciation from the Westland Youth Athletic Association. A veteran of World War II, Wagner served as a staff sergeant in the U.S. Air Force. Married, he is the father of two children.

"My past experiences on the planning commission, city council and my involvement in the community are the reasons I feel qualified to fill this position."

"After 27 years on the Westland Fire Department, 20 years as an officer and 22 years as a dedicated citizen of this community, I have a lot of my life invested in this city. Now that I have retired from the fire department I would like to take an active part in our city government to insure that progress will return to Westland. If I am successful, maybe my grandchildren will be just as proud to live here as I am."

"I have 10 years experience in administering municipal business, specifically, the City of Westland business, and know the internal workings of the city very well. I know how the city works and how it is supposed to work. In my 10 years I also picked up a substantial knowledge of municipal law and finance. My educational background is helpful to the city with its financial problems."

"I am a council candidate this year because I believe there has to be a cooperative effort among council members, the city administration, private business and community organizations, if Westland is expected to grow and prosper. I believe that I am able to bring to the Westland City Council and cooperative skills necessary to move this city forward and to improve the quality of all of our lives. I am convinced that I will be able to stop the fighting which so badly divides our community and prevents it from providing quality services for its citizens."

"As a councilman for 13 years, I've always strived to assist people with their problems. I know the basic problems of each area, and I basically know the solutions, but the solutions take time and, more importantly, more money than people can afford. I have the knowledge, skills, know-how, desire and integrity to more than adequately qualify me for this position."

"Basically, what is needed is more respect and trust between the two parties. Some of our meetings have resembled the old township days, and there is no need for that. There needs to be that respect that you would give to anybody. The people have elected the mayor, and we have to work with him, but that doesn't mean I give up my right to disagree. Ninety percent of what the mayor has proposed the council has approved, only 5 percent is disagreed with. The mayor will look closely at this election to see if he is headed in the right direction. It will, I believe, be a clear indication that he will have to work closer with the council."

"I believe the friction will remain as long as there are five votes against the mayor. One new councilman won't change that. The friction will still be there, just the voting will be changed. If it remains the same on the council, it will go back to the way it is, arguing over things that are unnecessary. The mayor isn't doing anything that mayors have done in the past. I'd like to see more than one new person elected to council. With one peron, you'll just have two Nancy Neals on the council. She was the highest vote getter in the last election and yet she can't accomplish a thing on council."

"If the entire council is returned to office, it would create a change in attitude with the mayor. He would have to realize that if he hopes to accomplish anything, he has to quit fighting. The politics of cooperation and compromise will begin. I think the council very early on in his term did a couple of things to him that they have since undone. But then, a lot of things the mayor did early on created a lot of suspicion. Some of the wrongs they've righted in the last year."

"I've been receiving a great deal of comment of what seems to be a lack of communication between the mayor and council. There doesn't seem to be a desire to want to communicate, it seems to be a mood of one-upmanship. I have the ability to sit down and negotiate to work out the problems in the community. I will put the community first over my political ambitions and concerns. I will work with the other councilmen."

"I'd love to open up lines of communication with the mayor. We asked him to communicate with us and he started FYI, but in six months' time we haven't received one. We are willing to sit down with him at anytime to discuss the issues as equals, but he doesn't think we're equals. The council is one-third of city government, and that makes us equals. We've tried everything — soft shell, hard sell, nice talk, tough talk, nothing works."

"I'd like to see the funds from cable TV we receive be used for a library for the city, rather than ask citizens for a new millage. It probably would be the best place to spend it. I believe there should be stability in the senior citizen program and voted for and strongly support the enlarging of the Friendship Center. We have a poor record of how we treat the business community, and I believe, even if it means calling for a special meeting, we have to give them the feeling that we're for new business and interested in the community."

"I'd like to see a lot of the hassle eliminated. We need to change the image of the city and return pride to it. Westland is going downhill, and people are getting disgusted with the hassling. It's giving the city a bad name. I'd like to see development in our five industrial parks that are sitting there doing nothing. Business doesn't know what to expect when it comes into this community the way it is now."

"I'd like to see financial stability returned to the city. I'm convinced there is no employee in this city who knows more about city finances than me, so I can keep an eye of them. I'd like revenue set aside for capital improvements, then we can enhance employee productivity and provide for their safety. I'd like to keep the ordinance department as is and keep one person in the police department to enforce against junk cars. We can't take them out, but we show them where we can provide the funds and alert the administration as to where the problems are. Responsiveness to the people also is important, especially when the administration is so unresponsive. I've seen so many people the last three to four months who are dissatisfied."

"I'd like to incorporate several city departments — parks and recreation, aging, YES and entitlement programs — into a department of human services. That department would have the responsibility of protecting the vulnerable citizens of Westland. It would be able to more adequately address the issues than these separate little departments, which are working against each other now. I'd like to see steps taken to protect the partnership Westland has with Garden City and Livonia for library services. If necessary, we should introduce legislation for the necessary millage to establish a library and create a library board that would be above politics to oversee it."

"I'd like to see an industrial coordinator in the city, who does nothing but go out and get industry for Westland. We have five industrial parks ready to take in industry, so we have to do something better than other cities. I'd like to see the Friendship Center expansion. It's very necessary to this city and its 8,000 senior citizens. I'd like to see all our roads paved. I'd like to make the city very vibrant, and you can't do that with dirt roads. I'd like to improve the business climate. Business is not happy in Westland, because they don't feel they can take their problems to the administration and get help. I'd like to see the mayor and council get along and get down to the business of running this city like it should be. Compromise is the only way that will bind the wounds in this city."

Charter Amendment

Charter Amendment

PROPOSED: Shall Chapter VII, Section 7.13 of the Charter be amended to provide that City Council appointments to office and its appointment of the independent auditor shall not be subject to mayoral veto?

PURPOSE: To remove the power of the mayor to veto council appointments to office and to veto the appointment of the independent auditor.

HISTORY: The amendment proposal is the result between the city council and mayor over council appointment of A. Kent Herbert to fill a vacancy on the legislative body. The mayor vetoed the appointment, citing his powers by charter. A majority of the council chose to ignore the veto and kept Herbert on council. As a result the issue was taken to Circuit Court, where the presiding judge, while stating that the use of the veto power in such instances was contrary to the principle of checks and balances in government, upheld the mayor's authority due to the wording of the city charter.

PRO: Councilmen favoring the proposal, contend that the amendment will keep the checks and balances of city government intact and prohibit the mayor from gaining control of the legislative branch through the use of the veto power. They maintain that such power would give the mayor control over the appointment of the city clerk, the only city employee appointed by council, and through that the city's electoral process, as well as control over the independent auditor, whose appointment was conferred on the council by charter amendment in 1975.

CON: The mayor, who has come out in opposition to the amendment proposal, maintains that the amendment would undermine the checks and balances of the city charter and is a power grab by the council.

Don't be misled by distorted Statement in regarding Taxes. The truth is that Inkster City Taxes have been slightly Reduced as a Result of State Equalization.

The high Taxes referred to by the opposition, are really the results of County and School Taxes, Which are Approximately Two Thirds of the Total Taxes Bill, Over Which The Mayor Or Council Have No Control.

In spite of a Small reduction in City Taxes, We have a small Surplus and a Balanced Budget.

Belleville

Belleville's first election under a city manager form of government is short on both candidates and issues.

Howard Stinehour, a city council member for 10 years, is running unopposed for mayor. Except in the unlikely event of a write-in campaign, Stinehour will take over the reins from retiring mayor Justin Emerson.

"Mr. Mayor" for a decade, Emerson, 73, is retiring to spend more time with his family.

Stinehour, 61, is the owner of Stinehour Real Estate. "Beautifying" Belleville and maintaining a policy of reduced taxation are among his concerns.

Stinehour has also said he would like to see city council meetings as "short as possible." But since his business is near the city hall, he has emphasized he will be "accessible" to citizens.

As mayor, Stinehour will take a much less active part in day-to-day government operations than his predecessor. Under the new charter system (voted in by a slim majority last August), the city manager takes over most of the responsibilities previously handled by the mayor.

Belleville's new city manager, Frank Pasarella, 29, handles the bare-bones work of running a small city. Actual policy, however, is determined by the city council; the mayor casting his vote along with the four council members.

Three candidates, including one incumbent, are in line for two city council seats.

Seeking his fourth term in office, Robert Tontalo is emphasizing his years of experience and his part in reducing the city taxes (which has dropped 3 mills since 1980).

A lifelong resident of the area, Tontalo has worked for 30 years for a Farmington accounting firm. He has also been active in a number of civic and community organizations, including the Belleville Chamber of Commerce and the volunteer fire department.

The youngest candidate Steve Sheldon, 29, made waves in a council election two years ago in which he finished last among four. But Sheldon proved to election officials that a voting machine had malfunctioned, registering only three votes.

He decided, though, against taking the issue to court.

Most recently employed as a sales representative for Artistic Upholsterers in Dearborn, Sheldon has held a variety of sales positions. He has been a leader in area Jaycees and active in local Republican organizations.

In a "Meet the Candidates" presentation, Sheldon emphasized that "having the people participate more" in council meetings was a top goal. He also said that the main business section in town should have a "theme" to follow to make it competitive with area shopping centers.

The third hat in the council race belongs to Richard Smith, the son of a past Belleville mayor and council member. Smith, 42, the co-owner of the Deering Insurance Agency was chairman of the charter commission which, last summer, drew up the city manager plan.

Smith has emphasized the need for an "efficiently run government" and "good fiscal management" over specific suggestions for change. Along with the two other council candidates, Smith said that the city should capitalize on its "small town" image to increase business.

Belleville

The candidates have run low-key campaigns in what is generally conceded to be an issue-free election. Except for campaign pens distributed by Steve Sheldon, little evidence of election memorabilia is visible in town.

If the election is similar to previous ones, a very low turn out is predicted. Only about 27 percent of the voters turned up for the council elections of two years ago.

The mayor and the council members are elected for four year terms and paid nominal salaries ($1500 for the mayor, $1000 for council members).

"I feel with my business background and my education background, I could be a benefit to the city."

What do you feel are the major issues involved in this election?

"During my term of office, I have worked on various programs that I feel are important to the city and its residents. I would like to see the completion of our senior citizens hi-rise complex and the further development of our industrial park.

What do you feel are the major issues involved in the campaign?

I do not feel we have any major issues. During our current economic "hard times," our problems are very practical — to maintain our current level of city services without raising taxes — hopefully, to reduce them further.

Why do you feel you are qualified to fill the position you seek?

"I am dedicated to success and accomplishments. I have experienced what it takes to work hard for a living as well as what is required to fight for the principles of our government. I feel I represent the average person's desires in government and their sense of fair play with a knowledge to fulfill them."

What do you feel are the major issues involved in the election?

"The City Manager Frank Pasarella has provided more aggressive progressive and positive approaches to city government. The growth of Belleville has some restrictions due to the physical layout of the area. All plans for growth and expansion must face these problems. However we must strive to improve the quality of living in Belleville."

Romulus MayorWILLIAM OAKLEY

William Oakley is a lifelong resident of the city of Romulus, and attended public school in the city. He and his wife, Mary, have raised four children.

Oakley began his career of public service on the Romulus school board, and also served on the Charter Commission when Romulus was made a city.

From the Charter Commission, Oakley went to the City Council, where he served until 1977. That year, he ran for mayor of the city and was elected. He is now completing his third term in office.

Oakley originally was employed in the oil business but for several years, the construction of custom homes was his trade.

The mayor calls the senior citizen highrise the "biggest accomplishment" of his administration, and says that he has always tried to run the city like a business. He points to this factor as the reason that Romulus is now a financially stable community.

BEVERLY McANALLY

Beverly McAnally and her husband have lived in the city of Romulus for 20 years, and are the parents of three children.

McAnally attended high school in Kansas City, Missouri, and supplemented her education at Park College, the University of Kansas City, and the Kansas City Art Institute.

After several years on the City Council, McAnally ran for the position of City Treasurer in 1979 and was elected. She has served in that capacity ever since.

While a resident of Romulus, McAnally has been involved with the PTA, of which she was elected President. She founded the YWCA pre-school nursery. She also has been involved with the Romulus Help Center, the HI Dental Care Program, and the Romulus Child Health Immunization Clinic, as well as the Romulus Hire-a-Kid project.

She also was chairman of the Compensatory Education Committee, and helped write the Home Repair Project.

The Romulus Community Market also was founded due to the efforts of McAnally.

Dear Romulus Resident:

As a Police Officer I patrolled Romulus for 11 years 1970 thru 1981. I feel I know and understand the problems, needs and wants of all the citizens of Romulus, from the youngest citizen to the senior citizens.

My wife Virginia and myself have lived in Romulus for 16 years, all our boys attend the Romulus school system. We feel this is a fine community to raise a family.

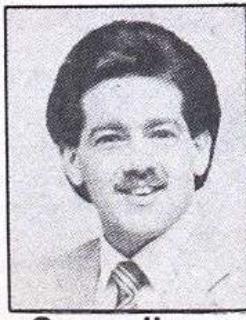

I vow that when elected to the city council I will vote fairly on all issues placed before me, always keeping in mind the needs of the citizens first.

Believe It!

ome candidates seeking election to City Council would have you believe that Westland is a 'BAD' Town filled with bad people. IT'S JUST NOT TRUE.

But every two years it seems that some people seeking your support believe it is OK to damage Westland's image in order to campaign for political office.

THAT'S TOO BAD.
